C. M. RUSSELL, "COWBOY ARTIST," DIES IN MONTANA

CHARLES M. RUSSELL.

Native St. Louisian Was Called Successor of Frederick Remington as Por-trayer of Frontier Life.

Charles Marion Russell, a native of St. Louis, who, for many years, had been internationally known as a portrayer of the early west in painting and sculpture, died unexpectedly last night at his home at Great Falls, Mont.
A press dispatch from Great Falls stated that Russell was seized with a heart attack at 11:40 o'clock last night and that 20 minutes later he was dead. He was 64 years old.
Word of his death also was received by telegram by his brother, S. Bent Russell, of 4950 Washington boulevard.

Charles Marion Russell left St.
Louis when he was 16 years old.
His preparation for his art career, which he did not undertake until near middle life, were years as a trailer of cattle, a hunter with the Indians, a broncho-buster—a vir-ginal liver in the open in Montana.

Out of that experience, in recent years he had been painting and modeling in clay the life of the early West as he experienced it. His work has had wide circulation. In 1923, the Canadian Government paid $10,000 for one of his canvases, and presented it to the Prince of Wales, then visiting his Canadian ranch. Russell's work has been in great demand throughout the West, in several Eastern cities and in Great Britain. The large canvas just withdrawn from the Ambassador Hotel entrance to the Ambassador Hotel in New York, which he painted in 1923, is now in the collection of the Canadian Government.

Illustrated Western Stories.
He first attracted attention as the illustrator of Emerson Hough's "Story of the Outlaw," Wheeler's "Trails of Lewis and Clark," and later, Stewart Edward White's "Arizona Nights." Russell had no art schooling. As early as 1887, however, he began filling notebooks with pencil sketches and, in 1892, he left the Milk River range in Montana and abandoned the life of the cowboy for that of the artist.

It is related that his fame was made overnight with one picture.
There came a winter in Montana so severe that it temporarily destroyed the cattle business. Russell painted a steer humped up in the snow with a coyote standing by, waiting for the steer to die.
He called it "The Last of the 5000."

He was very prolific. His paintings by the dozen portray the life of the Indian. The magazine, World's Work, in recounting his career, and reproducing a large number of his works, called him "an institution in Montana." Many of his admirers considered that his sculpturing was more remarkable, sounder in his art, than his painting. He still was a storyteller, whether in clay or in paint.
One of his better-known bronzes is "The Buffalo Hunt."

Work Exhibited in East.
It frequently has been said that Russell succeeded Remington as the artist best equipped to portray the West, and in later years his work has been exhibited in many Eastern galleries.

Russell, a typical Westerner in appearance, did not take kindly to attempts to hold him up as a celebrity, but preferred a circle of friends among his old acquaintances. He did, however, accept last year an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University of Montana "for the greatest historical achievement in a historical way of any person in the state."

Russell's father was the late Charles S. Russell, one of the founders of the Parker-Russell Mining and Manufacturing Co., a clay products corporation. It is recalled that in school in St. Louis, Charles Marion Russell was known as a dabbler with his pencil. Besides his brother, a sister, Mrs. T.
G. Fortis, resides here.

OHIO REGISTRATION SHOWS 250,000 LOSS IN 2 YEARS Cleveland Has 7000 Less Voters Listed Than Cincinnati; Politicians of Both Parties Puzzled.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—Lack of interest by the voters in the Ohio campaign has led to both parties in a quandary as to the probable effect upon chances of election of their candidates.

Approximately 250,000 fewer voters registered for this year's election in the seven largest cities—Cleveland, Cincinnati, Toledo, Columbus, Dayton, Akron and Youngstown—than two years ago.
Approximately 80,000 fewer registered in the seven large cities than was registered four years ago.

Cleveland, approximately twice as large as Cincinnati, has 7000 fewer voters registered, the former qualifying 121,000 and the latter

$250,000 CAMPAIGN FUND DWINDLES TO A PROMISE OF $2500

Republican Chairman Clements Gives His Opinion of the Contribution.

The $250,000, which Chairman Sam Fordyce of the Democratic State Committee said Saturday he had been informed had been sent into Missouri for the Republican senatorial campaign, today dwindle d to $2500 when Republican National Committeeman Clements gave his version of the contributions.

And the $2500, Dr. Clements added, is only a promise from the Republican Congressional Committee, which he hopes will be fulfilled, although none of it yet has been received.

"Our campaign for all the expenses of the election in Missouri is less than $25,000," Dr. Clements said. "This being an off-year, the Republican Congressional Committee has only $160,000 to spend in 48 states in the congressional elections."

SURGEONS FAVOR POISON GAS Association Assures American Legion of Support in Fight.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The American Legion has been assured of the support of the Association of Military Surgeons in its fight against the outlawing of poisonous gas warfare, which has been demanded by the State Department, and which is provided by the Geneva protocol.

The association, which numbers 3500 members, has forwarded to the legion a resolution recently adopted declaring "that the use of poisonous gases in war is more humane and less destructive of human life and production of human suffering than other methods of warfare." Despite the opposition of the legion, the State Department has made it plain that it would urge ratification of the Geneva protocol by the Senate.

Windstorm in Northern New Jersey
By the Associated Press.
NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 25.— Northern New Jersey today was swept by winds which at Paterson reached the proportions of a small tornado. High winds were reported at Asbury Park, Camden and Trenton. Telephone poles were snapped off, trees uprooted and at Camden several houses were unroofed and several persons injured by flying debris. At Paterson the storm was confined to the business district, where windows were broken, awnings were torn off and several big trees uprooted.

EX-U. S. ATTORNEY WHO KILLED HIS FAMILY AND SELF FEARED INQUIRY

W. O. Potter Spent Lot for McKinley and Worried Over Investigation by Department of Justice.

WAS UNDER SUBPENA FOR ENGLISH TRIAL

Clubbed His Wife, Two Daughters and Two Grandchildren to Death in Home at Marion, Ill.

Fear of being called as a witness by Senator Reed's campaign fund investigating committee in its inquiry into expenditures made for Senator McKinley in the Illinois senatorial primary, was one of the causes of the mental frenzy in which William O. Potter, lately United States District Attorney in East St. Louis, killed his wife, two daughters and two granddaughters and drowned himself in a cistern at his home in Marion, Ill., Saturday night.

The Reed committee, it was learned today, was part of the burden of worry which had weighed Potter down in recent weeks. Potter had visited St. Louis not less than three times recently, chiefly to seek the intercession of friends to keep Reed from summoning him.

"It would ruin me if Reed were to call me as a witness," he said to a Post-Dispatch reporter on a recent visit here. "I spent a lot of money for Senator McKinley, and I would have been reappointed if he had been renominated."

The Reed committee has not completed its inquiry into the Illinois primary, and no move has been made to summon Potter as a witness.

Also Worried Over Record.
Another fear which preyed on Potter's mind was that of an investigation of his official record as District Attorney for the Eastern District of Illinois, in which the Presiding Judge is George Washington English of East St.
Louis, whose impeachment trial before the Senate is to begin Nov.
10. An inquiry has been made into Potter's record by Department of Justice examiners, who found that laxity had been shown in a long list of cases. In many liquor cases, it was shown, stays of execution were granted after sentence, and when the period of the stay had elapsed, no move was made to execute the sentence.

Failure to follow up bond forfei-tures, in liquor and other cases, also was charged. His successor, United States District Attorney Harold G. Baker, has followed up a number of these neglected cases, and has placed some of the men in prison.

The examiners made their report to Baker, who has taken no action to bring about a more public inquiry into his predecessor's conduct.

Potter's son, Maurice, the only one of the household at Marion to survive the tragedy, today related that his father repeatedly said he was afraid of an official investigation.

"I asked him what he had done, that he need fear investigation," the son said, "and he replied, 'I wouldn't have to do anything.' I took this to mean that he felt he was being persecuted."

A more personal worry was the loss of his income, resulting from his failure to obtain reappointment last summer, and his inability since that time to regain his former law practice at Marion.

Potter Predicted Tragedy.
This combination of worries had caused Potter to make several utterances foreshadowing not only his taking of his own life, but the slaying of all the members of his family within reach. These morose utterances were made to his wife and son, and to a brother-in-law, and were known to others. In view of the fact that Potter's father had been insane, his remarks would have furnished ground for measures of legal restraint. But the relatives shrank from such action, and sought instead to calm the anxious man, and to assure him that things would come out right.

Today the bodies of Mrs. Potter, who was 52 years old, her daughters, Mrs. Gilbert White, 28, and Eloise Potter, 16, and Mrs.
White's two younger children, Phyllis, 3, and Cynthia, 5 weeks old, were being prepared for burial. All were killed by blows on the head with a cast-iron furnace shaker before Potter dashed from the house.

Dead Slayer, Three of His Victims And Survivor In Illinois Tragedy

PRESIDENT CAN OUST APPOINTEES DESPITE SENATE, COURT DECIDES

U. S. Supreme Bench Holds Invalid the Law That Required Consent of the Upper House.

SUIT WAS BEGUN IN WILSON'S TERM

Three Dissent—Decision Overthrows Form of Government Nation's Founders Planned, Says
One.

By the Associated Press.
right of the President of the United States to remove postmasters and other executive appointees from office without the consent of the Senate was upheld today by the Supreme Court in the case of F. S.
Myers of Portland, Ore.

In an opinion by Chief Justice Taft, the Court held that Federal statutes, which have been regarded as withholding that power from the President, are void.

The case, involving removal by President Wilson of Myers as postmaster at Portland was that on which the legislative and executive branches of the Government tested their constitutional right before the highest court.

So important was the question that the Court designated Senator Pepper of Pennsylvania, a former president of the American Bar Association, to represent Congress in argument of the case.

The point directly at issue was whether Congress had exceeded its power when, in the act authorizing presidential appointment of first, second and third class postmasters "with the consent of the Senate," it declared also that such postmasters could only be removed with the assent of the Senate.

Answering this question, the Court declared that Congress had no constitutional authority to restrict the President in the removal of officials from offices it created, but that the chief executive, haunted with the administration of the Government's business, must be free to act on his own discretion.

Taking up specifically that section of the law which makes the term of postmasters four years, the Court held that the President could remove them during that period for the good of the service.

The Court added that in case of a removal from office, it was not necessary for the President promptly to submit to the Senate the name of a successor, and that he could hold the office vacant indefinitely.

It held, however, that Congress could control the removal of minor officials not appointed by the President.

Three Justices Dissent.
Justices Holmes, Brandeis and McReynolds dissented. Justice Mc-Reynolds read a dissenting opinion in which he described the findings of the majority as revolutionary.
Under it, he said, the President would have authority to remove members of all commissions, although it had been supposed they could be removed only for malfe-sance in office. He argued that the right of presidential removal thus established would extend even to the Comptroller-General, about whose tenure of office Congress had sought to throw every safeguard.

The majority opinion, read by Chief Justice Taft, contained an exhaustive historical account of the relationship between Congress and the President, including the circumstances of the passage of the act in question, just after the Civil War.

"This court has repeatedly laid down the principle," it said, "that a contemporaneous legislative exposition of the Constitution, when the founders of our Government were actively participating in public affairs, and acquiesced in for a long term of years, fixes the construction to be given its provisions." Majority Agreement.
"We are now asked to set aside this construction, thus buttressed, and adopt an adverse view, because the Congress of the United States did so during a heated political difference of opinion between the then President and the majority leaders of Congress over the reconstruction measures adopted as a means of restoring to their property status the states which attempted to withdraw from the Union at the time of the Civil War."

NEW YORK'S WATER SUPPLY IS MENACED BY EARTH CRACKS

Reservoir Being Slowly Drained Cutting 450,000,000-Gallon Daily Need in Half.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The New York City water supply is threatened by subterranean cracks, which are slowly draining the 160-000,000 Ashokan reservoir in the Catskill Mountains, the New York Herald Tribune says. The reservoir is 12 miles long and three miles wide.

A recent survey, the newspaper says, supports the theory that millions of gallons are seeping away through the veins and thence to the surface again in adjacent water courses. The reservoir, described as rivaling the Panama Canal as an engineering achievement, is virtually empty. There has been no lack of rain, however, and feed streams are flush from bank to bank.

Esopus Creek, the main source of supply, has been found to diminish its flow shortly after entering the great basin, only to rise a few miles below the dam to full power. It is said to be delivering only 200,000,000 gallons daily of the 450,000,000 gallons needed for New York. Of the 150,000,000 gallons the reservoir is designed to hold less than 16,000,000,000 remain.

By the Associated Press.
HARRISBURG, Pa., Oct. 25.— Gov. Pinchot today charged the Republican machine in Pennsylvania with attempting to levy political assessments on State officials and threatened to remove any employee under his control who has been concerned in what he termed this "outrage."

In the present campaign the Republican State organization is supporting Representative Vare, who defeated Pinchot and Senator Pepper for the nomination for the United States Senate in the primary last May. The Governor has announced he will not support Vare for election.

COOLIDGE SENDS LETTER INDORSING BUTLER CANDIDACY

Says Massachusetts Man Is Rapidly Taking Rank as a Great Senator, Behold-en to None.

GOING HOME TO VOTE FOR BUTLER

Declares "His Presence in Senate Is of Great Importance to Me" in Discharge of Duty.

By the Associated Press.
BOSTON, Oct. 25.—In a letter made public by the Massachusetts Republican State Committee, President Coolidge said that "it was his desire to see Senator Butler continue the eminent service he is rendering Massachusetts and the nation."

Mr. Coolidge, writing in reply to a telegram asking whether he intended to cast his vote in his home city of Northampton, said that he and Mrs. Coolidge planned to make the trip to this State for the election and added warm endorsement of Senator Butler and of Gov. Alvan T. Fuller, who is a candidate for re-election.

He said Senator Butler was rapidly taking rank as a great Senator.

The letter said: "Quite naturally I want to vote for Governor of Massachusetts. I know something of the difficulties of that office. Gov. Fuller was in public life with me at the State House.
He has served the people well. He is a man of sympathy and understanding who has given a fair, honorable administration in harmony with the policies of constructive economy. His ability and experience will be of increasing value to the Commonwealth in a second term."

Butler Is My Friend.
"Of course I want to vote for Senator Butler. He is my friend.
I know how faithful he is. It is to him that I turned to entrust the great and delicate task of conducting my presidential campaign. His management of the campaign will stand as a model of wisdom, efficiency and honest effort. It left him the natural choice for Senator.
He represents Massachusetts ideals.
"He has come from the ranks and knows the trials that all people have to meet. By his own efforts he has risen to a position where his counsel was sought in important affairs as a lawyer and as a manufacturer. By his courage and ability he has come to hold an important place in the industry of our State, furnishing employment to large numbers of wage earners."

"In the Senate he holds a place which no one else could command for Massachusetts, admired for his wisdom, respected for his integrity.
He has been a benefactor to his State and nation. I know of his able and conscientious service. He is rapidly taking rank as a great Senator. I have an increasing pride in knowing that he is from my State.
"He stands on the Senate floor, independent, beholden to no one, a Senator of Massachusetts, serving the people in the public interest.
His presence there is of great importance to me in my efforts to discharge the duties of my office."
"Mrs. Coolidge and I want to go home to vote for him in our desire to see him continue the eminent service he is rendering Massachusetts and the nation."

Democratic Comment.
"The people are not surprised and the reaction to the letter will not greatly damage the Democratic cause," said John J. Murphy, in charge of the State Democratic campaign headquarters, in commenting on the endorsement of President Coolidge.
"The President quite apparently does not want to risk speaking in Massachusetts," he said, "yet he feels he cannot entirely dump overboard Butler and Fuller. He is in the middle of the road. The voters do not feel that Coolidge is the issue. The attempt to sell them that idea has failed. The people of Massachusetts are more concerned with present issues than with the 1928 campaign."

Coolidge Intends to Issue No Further Indorsements.
definite decision of the President and Mrs. Coolidge to go to their home at Northampton, Mass., to vote on Election Day was announced today at the White House.
Mr. Coolidge hopes in this way to give impetus to the movement in favor of a greater exercise of the franchise in the United States.
The Presidential party will leave here Monday, arriving in Northampton Tuesday morning, and will return immediately after the ballots are cast. Clear indications were given at the White House today that the President does not intend to issue any further indorsements of candidates.

Former Federal Prosecutor Kills Family, Drowns Self the house and plunged into the three feet of water in his shallow cistern. He was 56.

Potter's son-in-law, Gilbert White, an osteopath, has been on his way by motor from Miami, Fla., to Marion, where he expected to see Baby Cynthia for the first time. No word had been received from him to indicate whether he had learned of the death of his wife and little daughters. His 5-year-old son, Gilbert Jr., is with White's parents in Olney, Ill.

Potter's frenzied deeds are believed to have been committed soon after Eloise returned home at 10 p. m. Saturday.
At that time, as well as can be judged, Mrs. Potter and her older daughter had gone to bed. Five bedrooms were occupied by the family, on the second floor of the large frame Colonial house. Potter occupied one front bedroom, Eloise another, and rooms on either side of the hall were occupied by Mrs.
White and her children and by the son, Maurice, who was out at the time. Mrs. Potter's room was at the end of the hall, with the bathroom between this room and Maurice's.

It appears that Potter went first to Eloise's room, soon after she had returned and retired, and struck her with the iron shaker. She ran out of the room and into the room of her sister, Mrs. White, and there it appears the mother also entered in the effort to calm Potter and save her daughters.

All indications are that the women struggled desperately to defend themselves and the children. Mrs.
Potter and Eloise were killed in Mrs. White's room, and the two children, probably asleep, suffered fatal blows as they lay on the bed.
Mrs. White fled to the bathroom and was beaten to death there, her skull showing the impact of heavy blows than any of the others.

Maurice Potter, who is 26, returned to the house at 2 a. m. in a friend's automobile. He did not go upstairs at once, and noticed nothing out of the way.
Then starting upstairs for a book he saw the bodies of his mother and younger sister on the floor of Mrs. White's room, and the bodies of his little nieces on the bed.

He ran to a neighbor's house and a policeman was called, who found the body of Mrs. White. The path taken by Potter as he left the house was followed to the cistern, and there his body was found.

Maurice recalled that his father had told him to come home early.
He believed that his father had more or less definitely planned the killing of the family, and meant to include him. He and his little nephew, Gilbert White Jr., as the only heirs, will divide Potter's life insurance, said to have been $10-000, and the remainder of the estate.

The furnace shaker, which was found in the bedroom near the four bodies, which appeared never to have been fired, were found in Potter's law office, which he shared with Maurice, also an attorney.

A coroner's jury yesterday declared that the five members of the family met death at the hands of Potter while he was insane, and that he committed suicide.

Maurice Potter said that his mother told him that three weeks ago, that Potter had said to her, "Let's all go in the kitchen and shut the doors and turn on the gas."

Mrs. Potter's brother, John Spiller, a coal operator, said that Potter talked to him recently of suicide, saying that he was growing old and was without income, and adding, "I want to go, only I can't make up my mind to leave the family behind."

Circuit Judge D. T. Hartwell, a friend and confidant of Potter, said Potter told him Saturday: "Do you know, I woke up last night with the notion of killing my daughter." Judge Hartwell advised him to calm himself and not to dwell on morbid thoughts.

Potter wept when talking of his financial troubles, Judge Hartwell said. The Judge tried to reason with him, telling him that he had many friends, who would raise as much as $10,000 to tide him over any difficulties.

Judge Hartwell said Potter also expressed the fear of being indicated, as the result of a story told to Federal Judge Lindley in Danville by a woman who said she had paid $300 to obtain leniency for her husband. Inquiry into the matter showed, Judge Hartwell said, that the $300 was paid to a local official, who admitted that he had kept the money and had not offered any part of it to Potter.

Judge Hartwell tried to assure Potter that, under these circumstances, he was in no danger of indictment, but was unable to allay his fears.
Potter's house, valued at $15,000, was unincumbered. He had sold orchard property near Marion for $10,000, to pay off obligations, and mortgaging of the house would probably have been the next step.
He had a considerable investment in unimproved city lots in the Hollywood district in Florida, but it is not known what value this property now has. His son-in-law, White, lost heavily from the recent Florida hurricane, and partly for that reason Mrs. White went to the home in Marion some time ago.
She later was hospitalized in Kirksville, Mo., where her baby was born, and she returned to Marion only last week.

Potter was under subpoena to appear in Washington, Nov. 10, as a witness in the impeachment trial of Judge English.

He was known generally as "Judge" Potter, because of his service for six years as Judge of the Marion City Court, a court of record. He was State inheritance tax attorney under Attorney General Brundage, and was Federal Millitary in Chancery for the Eastern Illinois district before his appointment by President Harding, in 1922, as district attorney.

Marion is the county seat of Williamson County, which has been the scene of numerous hostilities between the Ku Klux Klan and its opponents. This fighting centered at Herrin rather than at Marion, but every person of prominence in the county was drawn into the controversy, and Potter was known as a bitter opponent of the Klan.

Enmity existed between Potter and the late S. Glenn Young, kindred liquor dealer. Potter had a part in causing the indictment of Young and others on charges of impersonating Federal officers. One of the last acts of Young's life was to file charges against Potter with the department of Justice. He alleged that Potter was "in league with the criminal element, and unfit to be

Potter was one of the organizers of the Industrial Lloyds Co. of America, a fire insurance concern, with headquarters in East St. Louis.
Joseph B. McGlynn, East St. Louis attorney, was president of the company, which recently discontinued business. Two of the directors, Charles W. Vursell and George M.
Sorugus, were formerly deputy probi-tion administrators. Suit for $50,000, for insurance claims alleged to have been unpaid, was filed against this company recently, Potter being named as a co-defendant.

The factory also is mortgaged.
Friends said yesterday that $35,000 was the utmost which could be realized by the sale of both. And Loewe has no money to carry on the fight.

He seemed to realize this when, in response to a question, he remarked:

"All I can do is to quote the words of Andrew Carnegie, spoken 25 years ago. Mr. Carnegie was once asked, 'If everything were taken away from you what would you do?' If my plants were taken away from me, Carnegie answered, 'I could do nothing but rebuild them. But if my organization were taken away, I would have to give up.'"

Union Men Feel No Rancor.

And Loewe has no organization left. Only the spirit which carried him through the long fight with the unions remains. It is this spirit which led prominent business men to step into the financial breach last spring and spare Loewe the humiliation of bankruptcy proceedings. It is this spirit which is respected even by his former enemies.

Loewe's spirit is appreciated even more, perhaps, by union men than by Danbury's business world.
Union men esteem him as the fighter he was and he is.
"Mr. Loewe is a damn nice man.
Don't ever let anyone tell you different," an officer at the local union said. "I carried papers to Mr.
Loewe's house when I was a boy. I want to say that you can tell a real man, even when you're delivering papers. Why, even when the strike was on, he was never too proud, or too bitter to speak to a union man.
It was the manufacturers that made him go ahead with his fight. Loewe never would have leveled these finer if it hadn't been for the higher-ups."

Other officials nodded assent.
The old bitterness has gone and probabilities are that if a collection were taken to put Loewe back on his feet, union men of Danbury would be among the first to respond.

It was not the old fight but a combination of circumstances, including a decline in the price of fur, which broke Loewe.

Hatters customarily buy the fur from which they make hats many months in advance. Sometimes a purchase of fur is followed by a heavy drop in the market and one such pinch caught Loewe. The old fight still showed in Loewe after his bad purchase. But it was no use. He owed money to the banks and to merchants. Creditors began to appear.

Loewe then went to a prominent business man and related his difficulties. This was last April. The individual after an audit decided that Loewe was too deeply involved to allow him to help.

So a creditors' committee of three was formed. The men advanced $50,000 cash. They went to the creditors and arranged for a settlement at 40 per cent. All but one creditor agreed and he was paid of fat a higher price.

By the terms of the settlement Loewe turned over all his assets, including home, factory and life insurance to the creditors' committee. There was no great fortune to liquidate and the three business men of Danbury were taking chances on getting back their $50-000.

Now Charles D. Parks, Charles A. M. Mallory and Arthur Tweedy see their way clear to getting back their $50,000.

The mortgaged house and factory still remain. In a legal sense these belong to the three creditors who dug into their pockets for the cash.
But, as Parks observed: "We feel that we have no moral right to that. It was business consideration, as much as friendship, which impelled our act."

REED SAYS WALB FALSIFIED ABOUT CAMPAIGN FUND

Declares Charge About Flooding of Indiana With Money to Beat Republicans Was Untrue.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the Senate Campaign Fund Investigation Committee, said here today that the investigation of Indiana politics, proved conclusively that the chairman of the Republican State committee put out a deliberate falsehood and that he was fully discredited.

"He said that the State was flooded with money," Reed added, "but the money turned out to be a lot of cheap pamphlets. Left gentleman and his stories were that suspended in the air."

Senator Reed's statement about the Indiana Republican chairman, Clyde A. Walb, was made after Reed had denied he had stated at Indianapolis last Friday that the Indiana inquiry was furnishing "only chaff." He was quoted by The Indianapolis News as having made such a statement.

Testimony before the committee that the League of Nations Non-partisan Association was trying to affect the senatorial campaigns in Indiana is "poppycock," Joseph Myers Jr. testified today. Myers represented the association in Indiana during the first six months of this year, and Walb testified last week at Chicago that the "propaganda" issued by the association was designed to defeat Watson and Robinson because of their vote against the world court.

"That's poppycock and nonsense," Myers said. "It is the result of the fevered imagination of a political leader who is either illiterate or terrified, or perhaps both." Explaining that his salary was $3000 a year, with $50 a month for expenses, Myers testified that the pamphlets he distributed and which Walb produced at Chicago went monthly to nonvoters, college and high school students.

"Was that campaign carried on only in Indiana or all over the Union?" Reed asked. "All over the Union," Myers said.
Doesn't Know About $8,000,000.
"Did anybody succeed you when you came to Kansas City?" "No one that I know of."

"Do you know anything about an $8,000,000 fund for world peace allocated to have been subscribed by millionaires?" "I know nothing of any such fund."
"Who paid your salary?" "The League of Nations Nonpartisan Association."

It was sent in a check to Alfred W. Taylor of Indianapolis, who was assisting in the work, and the $50 expense money was included.

"Well, we won't go into a $50 expenditure in an Indiana campaign," Reed said. "You say that your statement that your organization tried to defeat Senators is untrue."
"I do. It is an effort to draw a red herring across the trail in Indiana politics."

"Then you were not trying to defeat Senators Watson and Robinson?" "No. But personally I would like to see them defeated. I do not think they are the caliber of men to represent any great commonwealth in the United States Senate."

Refers to Hamilton Holt.
Myers told Reed that if he wanted to find out how the League of Nations Nonpartisan Association was financed he could do so from Hamilton Holt, formerly of New York, but now president of Rollins College, at West Palm Beach, Fla.

Reed announced that he was informed that Mrs. Vivian Tracy Wheatcraft, vice chairman of the Indiana State Republican Committee, was ill at St. Louis and could not give her testimony at this time.
He then called Frank J. Prince, a newspaper correspondent of Indianapolis, Ind., to testify that Mrs.
Wheatcraft gave an interview to him, and to W. A. S. Douglas, Western correspondent of the Baltimore Sun, in which she said she had organized "a poison squad" among the women of the State to aid Watson in his primary campaign.

Confirms "Butter" Story.
Before questioning Prince, Reed read into the record an account of the interview as written by Douglass and published in the Sun. Mrs.
Wheatcraft was quoted as saying that it was the work of the women to carry on a "whispering campaign."

After the publication appeared last August Mrs. Wheatcraft issued a statement denying that she ever had made any statement about "a poison squad" or "a whispering campaign."

Prince testified that Mrs. Wheat-craft had stated during the interview that she had organized a committee of 10 women in each of the 351 precincts and that through them she could "butter" the State with any information she desired to.

"At the conclusion of the interview," Prince said, "we asked Mrs.
Wheatcraft if she desired us to omit any of the interview and she said she did not. Mr. Douglas and I, after leaving, made notes separately, compared them later, and found they agreed substantially and then wrote our stories."

"Within 48 hours after the publication, Mrs. Wheatcraft, who happened to be in Portland, Me., sent out a denial through the Associated Press, but she did not sue us for libel."

Prince said he and Douglas, in going through the reports of Watson's campaign expenses in the primary, found the names of many women who were listed as receiving money.

Frederick J. Libby of New York, secretary of the National Council for the Prevention of War, submitted a statement of the budget of his organization, totaling $4930 a month, including $3000 as salaries of seven staff members, five stenographers and six clerks.

Among the vice chairmen is Jane Addams of Chicago, Julia C. Lathrop of Washington, Will Irwin of New York, Bishop Francis J. Mc-Connell and William Allen White.
Offices are maintained at Washington and San Francisco.

"The objectives" of the organization are "progressive world organization, 'world-wide reduction of armament by international agreement' and 'world-wide education for peace.'"

Replying to Reed, Libby said none of the vice-chairmen was a "pacifist" who were described by Reed as "those who would refuse to aid this country in time of war."

Jane Addams No Pacifist.
"What about Jane Addams?" asked Reed. In reply Libby read a statement made by Miss Addams to the editor of the Boston Herald in which she said she was a pacifist in the sense that she was a lover of peace, but that after the United States entered the World War she aided the country in the prosecution of the war. Libby would not say whether any member of the council's executive board were pacifists.

"I can't say what they would do in time of war," he said.
"I know what they would do," Reed returned. "They'd either go to war or go to jail."

Pressing for the war-time views of the council's membership, Reed said he had no criticism of the Quakers or the men who want to have swords beaten into plow shares.

"What I want to know is how many of these people would help our country if we went to war," he added. "I really can't tell," Libby replied. "I know the Quakers as a group believed it was their higher duty to God to do nothing to destroy this footstool, the earth."

"They believed then in permitting the conquering of the United States by a horde who would cut the throats of our wives and children." "I would not put it just that way," Libby replied.

Libby's salary with the council was $4000 a year. He handed in a list showing a total of $80,000 raised this year by his council, with total expenses thus far of $43,600. Donations included $5000 by Mrs. John C. Winston; $5000 by William P. and Emma Bancroft; $3300 by Mrs. J. Malcolm Forbes; $2000 by Charles F. Jenkins. There were 12 $1000 contributions and four for $1250. None of the donors was identified.

"Do you know anything about an $8,000,000 fund to be Indiana," Reed asked. "Only the testimony before your com-tee; it is ridiculous," Libby said that the international bankers "less diabolical than they are told."

"If they were really diabolical they would each subscribe $10,000 work," Libby said. "I agree you," Reed returned.

"Smoking Them Out," By Charles M. Russell.

A TYPICAL Western painting by the famous artist, born in St. Louis, who died yesterday in Montana.

QUEEN MARIE OFF ON TWO MONTHS' TOUR OF AMERICA

She Reviews West Point Cadets at First Stop of Her 10-Car Special on Way to Buffalo, N. Y.

By the Associated Press. NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—Queen Marie of Rumania, in her rolling palace of 10 special railway cars that will be her home for the two months of her American tour, left New York at 7:50 a. m. on her way to Buffalo, N. Y., where she is due to arrive at 8 p. m.

She will make a radio talk there from station WGR, and will leave Buffalo for Niagara Falls early tomorrow morning.

The train's first stop was at Garrison, to permit an inspection of the United States Military Academy and a review of the cadet regiments at West Point.

A heavy downpour of rain, like that which greeted her a week ago today when she landed in this country, marked the arrival of her special train. The deluge delayed for half an hour the royal party's passage across the Hudson from Garrison, but when it appeared that the rain was not to cease at once, the Queen led the way to the waiting automobiles. Handclapped and Prince Nicolas as they hopped and skipped over water pools and rails to the shelter of the station.

Hardly had the party gained their seats in the cars, however, before the rain stopped and a brilliant sun shone. Half an hour later, however, the showers began again.

Queen Dressed for Bad Weather. The Queen appeared in a heavy overcoat over her blue dress. A light colored toque, flesh stockings and green shoes completed her costume.

"I am a soldier today," Marie told those who would have held her in the train until the rain ceased. "If the cadets can stand in the rain so can I."

The Queen, who is a honorary Colonel of a regiment in her own country, tramped half a mile through rain-soaked grass at the Academy. Blankets were thrown on the ground for her to stand on while she reviewed the cadets, with the Prince and Princess, Gen. M. B. Stewart, superintendent of the Academy, and the commandant, Lieutenant-Colonel C. B. Hodges, grouped about her.

Marie visited Cullem Memorial Hall, where she inspected battle-torn flags that date back to the Revolution. From a balcony of the building she viewed the Hudson, and then visited the Cadet chapel. There children of the officers of the Academy greeted her, several of them receiving Marie's kisses.

The Queen was considerably relieved today of her cold and sore throat. A crowd of several thousand persons, packed inside the New York Central station, and in surrounding streets, greeted Queen Marie at Albany. In response to cheers and applause, she said a few words in appreciation of the demonstration.

The royal party boarded the train at Grand Central Station at midnight after attending a benefit performance at the Metropolitan Opera House of an interpretation of "The Lily of Life," a fairy tale written by the Queen. Lole Fuller, whose ballet presented the performance, had been ill for several days, but was behind the scene, bundled up in blankets, directing the light effects.

Queen Marie saw the ballet for the first time at the opera in Paris, the second time last Thursday in Philadelphia, and expects to see her friend's performance several times on her Western trip.

The performance was announced to be for the benefit of the Mothers' Memorial Foundation of New York, but Miss Fuller is reported to have received 50 per cent of the receipts. There were many empty seats last night, and speculators were offering tickets to rain-soaked crowds on the sidewalks at less than box office prices.

At the theater the Queen wore her diamond and pearl tiara. She was dressed in a white chiffon oversatin gown, glittering with sequins, and a full length ermine coat. She occupied the Pierpont Morgan box with Princess Ileana, Prince Nicholas, Mrs. Oliver Harriman, chairman of the benefit performance, and Mrs. C. Crittenden Calhoun, president of the Mothers' Memorial Foundation.

After the performance she departed by the specially decorated and carpeted side entrance, which, through an oversight, had been barred to her limousine by policemen when she arrived. Surrounded by secret service men she drove straight to her train, "The Royal Rumanian," at the Grand Central Station, where red velvet carpets were spread in her path. The throng at the station applauded the royal party.

The Queen shook hands with all the policemen who had formed her escort.

Greetings to the States. Forty-eight women, one from each state in the Union, have received greetings from the Queen in her own handwriting for the citizens of their states. The Queen presented the greetings at a luncheon given by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris at the Baltimore.

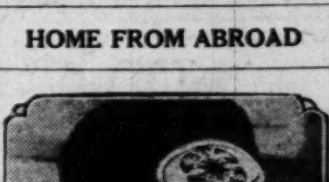

She drew from a brief case sheets, each with a blue cross in the upper right-hand corner, the tributes which she had written on the Leviathan when crossing the Atlantic.

She had difficulty in pronouncing the names of some of the states as she gave out the tributes. She attempted "Mississippi" several times, then gave up, saying, "Too many double letters. They always give me trouble." She pronounced Connecticut as spelled.

After the presentation Queen Marie went to the Plaza Hotel to a reception arranged by the North American Newspaper Alliance.

Dr. Frank Hughman, "soul surgeon," who crossed on the Leviathan with the royal party and whose religious precepts are under investigation at Princeton, and 150 followers were disappointed when the Queen failed to appear at his headquarters as he expected. SPEAK AT CHURCH MEETING AGAINST PROPOSITION NO. 4

D. W. Hill and Wayne Ely Urge Defeat of Dry Law Repeal at Webster Groves.

David W. Hill, vice-president of the International Life Insurance Co., and Wayne Ely, were the speakers at a meeting yesterday afternoon at the Webster Groves Presbyterian Church in opposition to Proposition No. 4, which provides for a repeal of the Missouri prohibition enforcement law.

Ely criticized the stand of Henry S. Priest in favor of the repeal as "hypocritical and unworthy of a former Judge of the Federal Court." Ely said that in a pamphlet issued by Priest, he referred to bootleggers as ignorant persons. "They may be ignorant," Ely said, "but they have sense enough to hide their stills. Even Judge Priest would not contend that ignorance of the law is an excuse for its violation."

Two Prisoners Shot Down. Meanwhile Crews and Wadlow ran to the south wall at guard lower No. 3, and picked up a ladder lying near the shirt factory. A few yards from the wall, Guards in the lowers opened fire with shotguns and shot fired by Guard R. A. Helton in tower No. 3 brought down Crews and Wadlow, severely wounded.

The five others, unable to face the fire, ran into the shirt factory, which is idle on Sunday. They opened an intermittent sniping fire from second-floor windows on tower guards and others who showed themselves. Their ammunition was limited and they only fired about 150 shots. Guards fired about 100 shots. Several shots were fired at Rudolph as he walked the top of the wall, between two guard towers.

Rudolph sent for tear gas bombs and six were thrown into the building after the siege had lasted nearly an hour and a half, but the gas did not drive the five rebellious convicts out. Volunteer reinforcements arrived, including members of the local National Guard company. Five guards, headed by Clyde L. Lane, went up an outside stairway and rushed into the building.

The convicts were not in sight, having hidden under the piles of clothing. The guards fired 15 or 20 shots into the piles of shirts, one not being fired in return and then the convicts came out with their hands up.

The five were roughly handled on the march to the prison hospital, several of them being struck blows with clubs or fists. After receiving emergency treatment all of the convicts except Crews and Wadlow were placed in solitary confinement in punishment hall, called "the hole." Convicts in the mutiny refused last night and today to give details of the plot, each asserting that he joined the group leaving the cell buildings after the trouble started.

Other Prisoners Kept in Control. Several hundred convicts who had reached the dining hall when the outbreak started, were kept under control and remained in their seats. The dining hall is on the main quadrangle apart from the stockade. The prisoners later were marched to their cells in small groups. About 40 visitors were in the Deputy Warden's office, in the main quadrangle, when the outbreak started. When it appeared the trouble was confined to the stockade they were escorted out the main gate.

Wall Tower No. 3, for which the convicts were heading, was the scene of a spectacular night break over the walls in February, 1924, when three convicts who sawed out of a cell building killed a guard at the tuberculosis hospital and took his pistol. They climbed to the top of the wall with a ladder, drove the No. 3 guard into his tower and dropped over the wall. The wall is low at this point. The three convicts were trailed through the snow to a farm near Jefferson City and shot by a posse as they emerged from their hiding place.

Leslie Rudolph, acting warden of the penitentiary, announced this afternoon that he would present an application to Gov. Baker for full pardons for four convicts who assisted guards yesterday. The convicts are Ollie Cooper, Artie Booth, serving eight years from Lafayette County for robbery; Grover McAllister, serving 20 years from Butler County for a crime not stated in his commitment papers, and Clyde Wolf of Jackson County, serving five years for robbery.

Justice in both houses carried legislative measures in that matter are now recognized by all who calmly review the history of that episode in our Government leading to articles of impeachment against President Johnson and his acquittal.

Unusual terms were used by Justice McReynolds in his protest against the views of the majority. At one point he asserted that, in his opinion, today's decision would absolutely overthrow the form of Government planned by the nation's founders.

"Yesterday we had a Government of limited specific powers," he said. "Today nobody knows what it is."

STUDENT IN AUTO SHOT BY PURSUING COUNTY OFFICER

Wounded, Five Others in Car Including 3 Girls, Escape Injury.

August Kaescher, 20 years old, a third-year student at Washington University, was seriously wounded at 1 a. m. yesterday when Deputy Constable William Skow, of St. Louis County, fired at a speeding automobile in the 6800-block on Manchester avenue, after a chase from Brentwood.

In the machine with Kaescher were two college chums and three young women, also students at the university. Kaescher and the driver, Jack F. Schwenker, 18, of 2549 Maple avenue, insisted today that they thought their pursuers were a gang of rowdies who they said had shouted insulting remarks to them earlier in the evening.

Kaescher is at City Hospital with a bullet wound in the back. He is under care of a private physician. He is expected to recover. He is the son of Edward N. Kaescher, president of the Kaescher Seed Co. who lives at Hotel Saum.

Shots Halt Speeding Car.

Two officers of Mounted District, Capt. Hussey and Patrolman Cole, were in a police car at Manchester and Boett avenues, when two machines, a Stutz pursued by an Oakland, came east at high speed. They followed to Pierce avenue, where three shots were fired from the second car and the first stopped abruptly at the curb.

Arriving at the scene, the St. Louis officers found Skow and Deputy Constable Robert Auer of Central Township arguing with the students.

Skow declared that he and Auer were on the street in Brentwood watching for speeders when Schwenker's machine passed at high speed. They commanded the machine of James Weaver of Brentwood, who is not an officer, and started in pursuit with Weaver's wheel, he related.

Three Bullets Hit Car.

At one point, he said, Weaver drove close enough for him to shout to the speeders that they were policemen but the only response was another burst of speed. Wearing Pierce avenue he drew his revolver and fired three shots, striking at a rear tire, he declared. One shot hit Kaescher, another pierced the windshield near Schwenker's head, and the third went through the auto top.

Kaescher and Schwenker told similar stories today. They had been at a Grand boulevard picture show and had driven out Manchester road for refreshments at a bar-stand. In turning around to come back, a fender of their car grazed another machine and the occupants, five or six men, began shouting obscenities at them.

After passing Brentwood, they related, Weaver's machine was observed in pursuit, but the youths thought it contained the rowdies.

Struck With Flashlight.

Witchell was struck across the face by Skow with a flashlight, and Kaescher was dragged bodily from the rear seat of the machine, a Post-Dispatch reporter was told by Schwenker.

Relatives of the three young women refused to permit them to talk today. They are Miss Dorothy Bettelheim, 18, of 7049 Forsyth boulevard; Miss Lucille McCutchan, 18, 6615 Kingsbury avenue, and Miss Mary Stoker, 18, 6170 Pershing avenue.

Skow, who was required to furnish bond by the St. Louis police, would make no statement today.

WATSON'S FRIENDS WORRIED OVER ELECTION OUTLOOK

Indiana Senator Has More Troubles Than Ever—Democrats More United Than in Years.

OPPONENT DRAWS BIG CROWDS

But Indications Are That While Watson Will Trail Republican Ticket, He Will Win.

By CHARLES MICHELSON, A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Oct. 25.—The deeper one digs into the Indiana political situation the less tangible basis there appears to be for the generally accepted conclusion that Senators Watson and Robinson are going back to the Senate.
"The Watson myth," as the Democrats characterize the theory that he is unbeatable, has a vast vogue along the Wabash and that explains the incredulity that exists among the old-timers of the Democratic organization when they canvass the glowing reports of the young men who have succeeded to the direction of the party.

"We have been through it many times," elucidated a veteran of Indiana political battles. "Year after year we counted up the votes ahead of elections, tested every report, listed the converts, banked on the weariness of the Hoosiers at the Watson regime, received the advance congratulations of his enemies in his own party and went to bed on election eve satisfied that the State had at least been redeemed. And every time the polls closed with Watson still on top."

Of course there comes an end to everything and perhaps the present campaign may put a stop to the uncanny prevalence of the senior Senator from Indiana. He and those about him are far from comfortable at the prospect. He has more enemies than ever in and out of his party, and yet the scarred old Democrats shake their heads and say, "It could not look better, but..."

Democrats are more closely knit than for years in the Hoosier State; no Republican feud has been healed and a few additional have been kindled. The scandal of the Stephenson business hangs over Republican office holders, and has not been quelled by the denials of both Watson and Robinson that they had any but the most casual relations with the grand dragon now serving a life sentence for a peculiarly repulsive murder.

The Antislavery League, traditional supporter of the Republicans, is no longer solid by reason of a long series of events in which the decisions of a Republican Supreme Judge as to reports on prohibition campaign contributions, etc., figure, as well as contempt proceedings because of the league's suggestions of motives behind the court's rulings. Watson either could not or would not pull the Judge off.

Watson's Record Hammered.
The Democratic candidates against the colorless Robinson and the flamboyant Watson should be perfect foils for the Republican Senators. Albert Stump is a human dynamo. He can talk as loudly and more frequently than Watson in his most vociferous days; he is beloved of the churches and the hero of the schools. He draws bigger audiences than anybody else in the campaign, and has hammered at Watson's record as a trimmer and the sterility of his 20 years of public office holding, in every town and hamlet from the Ohio to the Lakes.

Evans Woolen is so fine, so solid, so dependable, the Democrats say that if he wins he will make such a record in the Senate that nothing can stop him from being the Democratic candidate for the presidency.

Much of this doubtless is merely the effluvia of campaign enthusiasm, but the banker candidate is certainly a relief from the type of political offerings most familiar in senatorial contests. He will get a lot of Republican votes in business and professional circles of Indiana. They took the usual straw vote at the most aristocratic golf club of this vicinity, the membership of which is mainly Republican, and the locker room was his three to one.

Opinion differs as to the effect of the incursion of the Reed committee. The dramatic setting of Watson's hospital bed denial of unholy traffic with Grand Dragon Stephenson, and the equally fervent disclaimer of Robinson at least gives the Republicans a chance to declare there is nothing to the Stephenson charges so far as the senators are concerned.

ager, Burt Thurman, is also among the aspirants for the governorship and so has first call. It is not quite clear whether the Democrats expect Walb to be poison to the Senator's invalid brother, or to stick a knife on him. It doesn't make much difference now. Walb is out of it and Thurman has not more than six or seven opponents left.

Really, the elements that are depended on to explode the Watson myth are more substantial than this. The Democratic organization although not up to that of the Republicans, is the best they have had in years and there is no question about the disaffection in the Watson ranks both in the cities and down the State.

Presumably the grand jury investigations of the patronage contracts with the klan will touch some of the Republican hierarchy, although the two Senators will be given a clean bill of health. There may be a sudden swing because of the findings if, as expected, they come in the last days of the campaign. Senator Robinson was appointed by Gov. Jackson, and Jackson was the klan candidate, but the report of the grand jury will have to be more severe than is now foreshadowed, to do much damage.

The promise of the campaign continues to be that Woolen and Stumpf will make a remarkable run, and just fall short of catching Watson, who will run far behind his ticket. Come to think of it, that is what Watson does, but in the words of the song, "He gets there the same."

INGROWN NAIL

Turns Right Out Itself

"Outgro" is a harmless antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

A few drops of "Outgro" in the crevice of the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so tenderizes the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it cannot penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost overnight.

BROTHERS TRAP MAN SOUGHT FOR CANTON MURDER

Last of Trio Indicted for Killing of Ohio Publisher Is Arrested in Pennsylvania.

By the Associated Press.
CANTON, O., Oct. 25.—For three months, while he was sought the county over as the man having full knowledge of the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, on July 16, Patrick Eugene McDermott lived in luxury in Cleveland. Then his desire to see his mother led him into the hands of the law.

Last night he was lodged in Stark County jail, the last of the trio indicted for the murder to be taken into custody.

The other two, Ben Rudner of Massillon and Louis Mazer of Canton, are awaiting trial. Mazer goes on trial Nov. 8 and Rudner Dec. 6.

McDermott was arrested yesterday morning at Twin Rock, Pa., by Ora Slater, Cincinnati detective, and P. B. McClintock, Stark County prosecutor. He was captured in a trap laid by his brothers, Tom and Bernard, who long ago promised Slater and McClintock they would try to locate him so he could tell his story, whatever it might be.

McClintock and Slater said today that the case against Rudner and Mazer has been much strengthened by McDermott's arrest, but said they have obtained no confessions.

"I am certain that apprehension of McDermott will clean up the whole murder case by Jan. 1," he said.

McDermott will be held in jail, inaccessible to anyone but his family, Slater and the prosecutor announced.

When told that McDermott had been taken into custody, Rudner smiled and said: "Good. If he tells the truth I'll be out of here tomorrow."

Prosecutor McClintock, however, declared there will be no change in the procedure and that Rudner and Mazer will go on trial as scheduled.

Murder of Mellett.

Mellett, publisher of the Canton News, was killed July 16. He had received numerous threats because of his campaign against vice and lawlessness in Canton, and had attacked the Canton Police Department, making charges of unrestrained bootlegging and crime.

He was fired upon from ambush as he put his car into the garage in the rear of his home.

According to the prosecution's theory, Mazer, Rudner and possibly others, incensed at Mellett's campaign against the underworld, of which they were alleged rulers, plotted the murder, employing McDermott as an aide.

McDermott was first drawn into the inquiry when Steve Kascholk of Nanty Glo, Pa., who says he also had been in Cleveland with McDermott, told Slater a few days after the murder that McDermott and he had been hired to "slug" Mellett, that he had backed out but that, so far as he knew, McDermott had gone through with the plot. Kascholk is now held as a material witness against all three of the indicted men.

How He Was Captured.

For three months McDermott was in hiding in Cleveland. A week ago relatives learned of his whereabouts and placed him in a residence in the mountainous region of Pennsylvania. Early Saturday morning Prosecutor McClintock received a telephone call from a brother of McDermott who told McClintock to go to Pennsylvania at once as they had "good news" for him about McDermott.

McClintock and Slater conferred with the brother and other relatives in Nanty Glo Saturday night and it was agreed that Pat should be taken into custody Sunday morning.

A relative who told the incidents leading up to the surrender, said McDermott's whereabouts became known following a visit he made to relatives in Cleveland. The family spokesman did not know who was supporting the fugitive, but he said he had a servant, a fine apartment and a car.

One rainy evening, it was said, Patrick McDermott walked five miles along a railroad track to the home of a relative who later visited at Wilmerding, near Pittsburgh. Bernard McDermott was said to have visited Wilmerding, learned of Patrick's activities and devised plans to catch him.

Ruse Used to Get Him.
The next time Patrick visited the relative, about 10 days ago, he found his brother there with his automobile. Patrick was told that his aged mother was worrying about him and that he should visit her. However, it was said, that he did not like the idea of going to Pennsylvania, so was forced into the machine. He did not see his mother, and whether she knew of his presence was not known. Mrs. McDermott is in poor health, but not seriously ill.

The family spokesman refused to divulge the names of Patrick's relatives in Cleveland. He said there were two McDermott sisters there, but that it was not to their homes he visited.

A THREE DAYS COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth. Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs. Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist!

CHOUTEAU'S CAMPAIGN COSTLY, COCHRAN SAYS

Republican Trying to Buy Seat in Congress, Democratic Nominee Charges.

John J. Cochran, Democratic candidate for Congress in the Eleventh (St. Louis) district, in a speech at Grand boulevard and North Market street in the Twentieth ward, yesterday afternoon, accused his Republican opponent, Henri Chouteau, of expenditures far in excess of the amount permitted under the Corrupt Practices act. Cochran said he had information of many of these expenditures and that he intended to examine Chouteau's expense statement when it is filed to see whether they were listed.

"I do not intend to sit quietly and let this man who happens to be rich try to buy a seat in the Congress," Cochran said.

"The Corrupt Practices act limits the amount a candidate may legally spend, and violations of the act might in the end cost him his seat if he is elected."

Free Passes Offered.

"In the past 10 days Mr. Chouteau has covered the district with hand-painted signs. I have purchased three such signs and I know they cost $10 each. Paid solicitors are also distributing his likeness in expensive frames. He has other paid solicitors going from house to house."

"His latest effort is an invitation to accept an offer to place their names on the free list at the Odeon, which he owns, and receive passes to shows. I have one such letter which he sent to a Democratic precinct man."

"He has been very liberal in sending boxes of cigars to city employees."

"I propose to abide by the Corrupt Practices Acts of both the State and Federal governments, and I will insist that my opponent does the same. I propose to examine his Federal return and see if he has listed the expenditures referred to. They are covered by the act and must be included."

Law Limits Expenses.

"Mr. Chouteau advertises that he has ability and experience. As he is the owner of the Odeon, I suggest he stage a mass meeting and tell the people of his experiences and demonstrate by his utterances that he has ability. If he will do this and extend an invitation to me, I will be glad to appear on the same platform and give the people of the district an opportunity to judge for themselves who is best qualified to represent them in Congress."

Under the Missouri law a candidate for Congress in the Eleventh district is limited to an expenditure of $1650.

Chouteau today said his expenditures would not be one-third of the State limit.

"I have distributed some cigars," he said. "When I went around the polling places on election day I usually left a box of cigars. On registration day my cigars gave out and in several places I left $4 or $5 for somebody else to get the cigars. Surely there is nothing wrong about that."

"There is a Chouteau-for-Congress Club, with headquarters at the Odeon, which has been advertising my campaign. I do not know anything about what it may have spent for advertising. I haven't spent any money, except for a few cigars."

DRUG STORE HELD UP BY TWO YOUNG MEN WHO GET $144

Two Employees at 4901 Page Boulevard Compelled to Lie on Floor While Cash Register Is Looted.

A drug store at 4901 Page boulevard was robbed last night by two young men who had ordered ice cream. As they were being served they drew revolvers and commanded the prescription clerk, John Kessler, 1313 Bayard avenue, and Leo Howard, soda fountain clerk, to lie on the floor, after which they proceeded to take what money they could find in the cash register. Before they had finished a customer arrived and the robbers fled. The police were notified (they got away with $144).

EXPLODING MINERAL FOUND

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Samples of a new mineral, pieces of which exploded when first uncovered, were shown here yesterday by Dr. W. F. Foshag, a Smithsonian Institution geologist, on his return from an expedition into the mining regions of Northern Mexico.

The mineral was discovered by men who were extracting silver ore. The explosions of the mineral had the sound and effect of charges of dynamite, and are believed to have resulted because the miners had formed in insufficient spaces and burst when given an outlet. The exploding mineral has been named Hillebrandite.

Dr. Foshag also discovered another new mineral, Velardite, and displayed the largest specimen crystals in the world, some of them six feet long.

Two Fail to Swim to Catalina.

smooth skin—these are the things that women can have. Dr. F. M. Ed. for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments.
These years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made from well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them by their olive color.

Tablets are wonder-workers for liver and bowels, which cause all action, carrying off the poisonous matter in one's system.

They have a pale face, allow looking, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, indigestion, all outraged bowels, you take one of these Olive Tablets nightly for a week and the pleasing results of a new complexion will be evident to all eyes.

Women and men take these Olive Tablets—now and then stop your cough tempo-

POLICE BOARD AIDS DISABLED OFFICER

Appoints Henry S. Claggett, 70, Watchman for Abandoned Station.

Henry S. Claggett, a disabled police officer in his seventeenth year, recently faced loss of his home in which he has been caring for and educating four adopted children ranging from 4 to 12 years.

The Board of Police Commissioners, at the suggestion of neighbors, has come to his rescue with a new home, the abandoned Clifton Heights substation. The board has formally appointed him watchman for the building, and, as such, he will move into it next week with his brood. He has been occupying a building, formerly used as a school house, which the Board of Education recently determined to raze.

Claggett joined the department in 1891. He was continuously in service until January of this year, when he suffered retirement, with other aging policemen, in reconstruction efforts of the board under the classification of "physical disability."

When Claggett learned that he was to lose his school house home, he looked across the street at the abandoned police station in which he had served for many years, as desk sergeant. He sought President Allen C. Orrick of the Police Board. "Write me a letter and enclose the name of one of your neighbors asking the board to do something," Orrick told Claggett, who complied. He then was sworn in as a watchman and assigned as caretaker of the old building.

than many Americans do.

Thomas Burke, the accredited author of "London," which the British National Film Co. is now showing, is chafing under the liberties taken with his original scenario.

"My scenario was called 'The Pilgrim's March' and bore no resemblance to what is being offered," he declared. "This film is called a romance of Mayfair and Limelight. I never called the scenario that, because it wasn't any romance at all. I never saw a foot of this film when it was being made and was amazed when I read there was a 'Limelight' death dance' in it. I never heard of such a dance. There is no literary version of the story, so I suppose the public will always think I am responsible for the filmed version."

Dorothy Gish is the featured player in the film, which the London press has received unfavorably.

JUDGE HEARING OBJECTIONS TO $100,000 SEWER PROPOSAL

Protests Against System for O'Fallon Allege Excessive Costs and Legal Errors.

County Judge Weber of St. Clair County is hearing objections to the $100,000 sewer system which it is proposed to construct at O'Fallon north of Belleville. Objectors declare that the cost of the improvement is greatly in excess of possible benefits; that the ordinance providing for the system is illegal, and that the assessment for the project not properly distributed among the property owners. The hearing will last several days.

GREEN ASSAILS WILLIS' RECORD

A. F. of L. Head Urges Ohio Labor to Vote Against Senator.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 25.—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has called upon organized labor in Ohio, to defeat Senator Willis for re-election because of his record on labor in Congress, and particularly his record while Governor of Ohio.

Green's letter was made public at Democratic State headquarters yesterday. The letter declares that Willis' attitude while Governor toward the workmen's compensation law, "on many occasions, was most unsatisfactory." His signing of the Gallagher bill, which repealed the mine run law, was declared by Green to have shown Mr. Willis' extreme hostility to labor.

Falling Wall Causes Quake Rumor

BROCTON, Mass., Oct. 25.— The collapse of a high cement wall, causing damage to a nearby building here last night, caused an erroneous belief that there had been an earthquake shock. It developed, however, that an all-day rain had undermined the wall. The jar was felt three miles. The wall was 175 feet long, 35 feet high and 3 feet thick.

JEWISH FUND FOR EUROPEAN RELIEF REACHES $185,000 Drive to Obtain $500,000 as St. Louis' Quota of National $25,000,000 Contribution Is Opened.

Subscriptions totaling $185,000 were recorded last night at a dinner at the Columbian Club, 3909 Lindell boulevard, when the United Jewish Charities of St. Louis formally inaugurated its campaign to raise $500,000, the St. Louis quota in a national drive for $25,000,000 to be used in relief work among the Jews of Eastern Europe, particularly in Poland.

The first to subscribe was Aaron Waldheim who announced a contribution of $15,000. He was followed by Sydney M. Shoenberg, Morton May who gave $7500 cash. Other subscriptions ranged from $500 to $5000.

A plea for contributions was made by Miss Irma May of New York, who recently returned from a tour of the areas in which the fund is to be expended. She declared that while orphans were given some care through public agencies, children whose parents could not make a living were starving. Many parents had committed suicide so that their children could be saved as orphans, she said.

Children Perish in Famine.
The Joint Distribution Committee, disbursing agent of the present campaign, is now caring for 35,000 children in Poland alone, she declared. In Bessarabia, she added, 90 out of every 100 children under six years of age perished in a recent famine.

Rabbi Leon Harrison of Temple Israel followed Miss May declaring that the plight of Jews in Eastern Europe had no parallel in history. Seventy-five per cent of the 3,000,000 Jews of Russia, he declared, were out of work due to the economic collapse. He praised the Soviet Government for the fact that it had discouraged pogroms and persecution of Jews.

List of Subscribers.
Subscribers, who pledged more than $1000 follow:

CITY AND COUNTY VOTE TOMORROW ON MERGER PLAN

Polls in the 624 Precincts of St. Louis, 121 of St.
Louis County to Open at 6 A. M. Close at 7 P. M.

BOTH SIDES ARE CLAIMING VICTORY

Elections Separate and Majority in Both City and County Necessary for Proposal to Carry.

Polls in the 624 precincts of St. Louis and 121 precincts of St. Louis County will be open from 6 a. m. to 7 p. m. tomorrow for the special election on the city-county merger proposal.

The election will be conducted separately by city and county, and the majority of the voters cast in each place. To approve the merger, voters must scratch "no" and write "yes." Purpose of the election will be stated briefly on a short ballot.

Leaders on both sides of the increase campaign for and against the matter continue to predict victory, each for his own side. A heavy vote is expected in the county and a light one in the city, but larger advocates have issued statements urging a heavy vote everywhere, and cautioning against overconfidence, with the injunction "Vote and vote early, as a rule."

Assured of Franchise.

There will be no disfranchisement of county voters for the November general election of the merger is adopted, although the consideration would become effective immediately under the official rules of the City Election Board provide for erstwhile county voters to cast complete ballots in St. Louis as city voters in November.

A voter of Overland declared in the last few elections that there were opened only from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m. in violation of the law. Election Commissioner said today his office should be open for the full time required.
Volunteer workers of the County Annexation League, who will be at duty in the county tomorrow, received the following instructions from Joseph Forshaw, secretary of the league: "Keep your eyes on the polling places, which the ballot boxes as they are follow them to Clayton in own machines, to make sure no go direct to the Election Commissioners' office. Be in Clayton tomorrow evening in force and keep your eyes open for any in-regularities. With a fair election of a fair count we will score a victory."

County voters are advised by the League to Announce and Greater St. Louis Club for Women to make a record the numbers of their ballots, as a precautionary measure. The city Election Board has announced it could not meet the request of merger advocates for polls at the polls.

Leaders of the County Committee Opposed to Annexation have declared they were at the polls as any citizens in having an election, and will insist on one.
Another force opposing the merger, the political machine of Boss Fred McNary, has been mobilized against the proposal.

St. Louis has not changed its status in 50 years, since it separated from the county in 1876.
It means that the urban community has expanded far beyond city limits. Merger proponents summarize the issue as standing for a greater St. Louis and its development, while opponents declare it is one of local self-government for the county.

The campaign has centered in the county government of its town and 91 school districts, making the whole territory a part of St. Louis under the same charter and giving the city the largest area of any in the country.

Arguments for Proposal.

City and county constitute one community, says the Greater St.
Louis Committee, "and consolidation is in the interest of all. It means economical growth and development of consolidated interests, and the closing meeting of the campaign will be a debate at the Central School, Wellston, tonight. Tomorrow, in the county, the Commissioners Opposed to Annexation will have a large force of volunteer workers, while the County Annexation League has arranged for automobiles to visit all precincts and carry voters and for

URGES WATERWAYS EFFORT

Hoover Says Navigation of Rivers Should Be Nation-wide.

By the Associated Press.
KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—River navigation on a nation-wide scale from the Alleghenies westward to the coast, with the Missouri River an important artery, should be in operation within five years, Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce, said here today.

Hoover, who is here for a conference with a group of Kansas City men interested in immediate river navigation.

"This waterways system should be in operation within five years," the Secretary said. "If Kansas City, St. Louis, Omaha, Chicago, St. Paul and other inland ports, which are the proper move in the next Congress. The next Congress could pass the necessary legislation to make such a system possible. It would mean a $150,000,000 program, expended at the rate of $30-000,000 annually."

Party Fights for Place on Ballot.

By the Associated Press.

JEFFERSON CITY, Oct. 25.— The Commonwealth Land party of Missouri today began a last-minute fight to get its candidates on the ballot for the Nov. 2 election.

An application for a hearing on the constitutionality of the law which would keep them off was granted by Judge H. J. Westhus in Cole County Circuit Court today.

The hearing set for tomorrow morning. The party alleges it is
being deprived of its constitutional rights by the law recently passed which increased the number of signatures necessary for the party to be placed on the ballot.

Proposal to Tear Down

ARGUES HIGH WALL MEANS HIGH WAGES

Declares Reduction Would Drive American Interests to Build Factories in Foreign Fields.

Special to The Post-Dispatch.

administration favors the international bankers' plan to eliminate European high tariffs, but American protective tariffs must not be tampered with, Secretary of the Treasury Mellon announced today.

The manifesto of the bankers, which J. P. Morgan and other American financiers joined in signing, was "directed at European and not American conditions," Mellon said in a statement.

"Unless we are willing to bring our standard in America down to the level of that of Europe we cannot consider a change in our tariff, however desirable such a change may seem to Europe," he said.

"It is inconceivable to me that American labor will ever consent to the abolition of protection, which would bring the American standard of living down to the level of that of Europe, or that the American farmer could survive if the enormous consuming power of the people in this country was curtailed and his market at home destroyed."

International Trade Barriers.

Mellon said that the American protective tariff was responsible for the development of manufacturing in the United States. It has brought labor to the highest wages in history and at the same time has not restrained trade, he declared, adding:

"For example, the Austro-Hungarian empire was a commercial manufacturing and agriculture whole. Today Austria with its plants, banking facilities and railroads is cut off from both its markets and its sources of raw materials."

"We have a brain without a body. It is just as if we should make New York City with the southern portion of New York State and the states of Connecticut and Rhode Island a separate country. The city would be too large for the territory which it could reach and the rest of the United States would be deprived of that intensive manufacturing and financial center."

What international bankers desire is to bring about a condition similar to that which now exists in the United States, Mellon held.

Prizes Protective Tariff.

"The purpose of the policy in Europe is to provide a territory large enough to contain raw materials, manufacturers and a market so that industry may function where coal and iron and laborers are convenient and food may be produced where conditions for its production are favorable. No such limitation exists in the United States."

Mellon said that our protective tariff is responsible for the development of manufacturing in the United States. It has brought labor to the highest wages in history and at the same time has not restrained trade.

Turning the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1926, merchandise with a total value of nearly $4-000,000,000 was imported into the United States, a larger volume than ever brought into the country in any preceding 12-month period.

"The trend of trade during the past few years convincingly confirms the contention that the volume of imports is controlled by the purchasing power of the Nation, rather than the rate of import duties assessed."

Purchasing Power Is Measure.

"An unparalleled combination of high wages and industrial activity has raised the purchasing power of the people of the United States to new high levels, which has brought about increased consumption of commodities of practically every description."

Under present policies foreign countries are able to sell to the United States increasing quantities of commodities not produced in America, duty free without injuring American industry, Mellon said.

"It is fallacy to assume that reduced import duties will enable this country to increase its purchasing power by the measuring chances abroad for the measuring power and not the amount of duty assessed," he continued.

"With business activity and high

BRITAIN EXTENDS RUBBER CONTROL FOR ANOTHER YEAR

Average Price Must Exceed 42 Cents a Pound if Present Export Quantity Is to Continue.

OTHER COMMODITIES UNDER CONTROL

U. S. Department of Commerce Official Says Effect Is to Check Progress of Industry.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 25.—By the Government's new rubber regulations, restricting the export of rubber from Ceylon and Malaya for another year, which will be put into effect Nov. 1, it seems probable that the coming quarter will see a reduction of the exportable allowance from the present 100 per cent to 80 per cent.

The average price of rubber for the current quarter up to Oct. 20 was 26.145 pence, and the average must exceed 21 pence (42 cents) to justify the continuance of the 100 per cent standard of exports.

Apprehension had existed in the market that the Colonial Office might decide to cancel unused export coupons as a further measure of restriction. These unused coupons would permit the export of an additional 40,000 tons, and as they have not been interfered with it is estimated that they will counteract a 20 per cent reduction in the ex-portable allowance for another six months.

It is recognized in the rubber market in London that the situation is dominated largely by the United States and depends to some extent on the growth of the motor industry in America; and that, although in the current year production exceeded consumption by 10-000 tons, such surplus would be none too high if the American motor industry develops as expected.

New Regulations.

If the average price of rubber in London is under 21, but not under 15d per pound during any quarter, the exportable percentage of standardized production for the ensuing quarter at the minimum rate of duty will be reduced by 10. If, however, the reduction thus effected is a reduction from the figure of 100 per cent, the reduced percentage for the ensuing quarter will be 80.

If the average price for any quarter is not under 21, but less than 24d, there will be no change in the ensuing quarter. If, however, in each of the three consecutive quarters the average price is not under 21, then the percentage for the ensuing quarter will be increased by 10.

If the average price for any quarter is 24 or over, the percentage will be increased by 10 for the ensuing quarter. If, however, the increase under this regulation is an increase from 80 per cent, the increased percentage for the ensuing quarter will be 100.

If the average exceeds 36 in any quarter, the percentage in the ensuing quarter will be increased to 100.

In no case will the percentage be
below 60.

If the average exceeds 36 in any
quarter, the percentage in the ensuing quarter will be increased to 100.

below 60.

Government Control Established Over Eight Other Commodities.

By the Associated Press.

Commerce Department reported today against the Government control which has been established over the production and marketing of eight important commodities that must be purchased from abroad at a total value of $1,000,000,000 annually.

E. G. Holt, chief of the department's rubber division, said that following the great success achieved by the British rubber monopoly, foreign governments have sought to raise the price of long staple cotton, camphor, coffee, iodine, nitrates, peach mercury and small most of which are essential to American industrial activity. The United States is the largest single consumer of all of these.

"The economic objection to these controls," he continued, "is the stiffening of production through forced restriction combined with price fixing. There is a suspension of the fundamental progress of industry, which can come only in increased volume of consumption and decreased cost of production. In most cases the controls have resulted in periodic speculative operations by which large sums are abstracted from industry and consumers without any service rendered. The result has been, and always will be, that the just complaint of consumers drags our Government into relations which

8000 "Beggars" Feast at Moorish Wedding Barbecue

Occasion Is Marriage of Son of Sultan and Descendent of Mohammed to Daughter of Mountain Lord.

By the Associated Press.

MARRAKECH, Morocco, Oct.
25.—Thousands of Arab sheikhs mounted on beautiful steeds, resplendent in white silk robes and multi-colored bournouses, are garthered here to attend the wedding of the son and heir of Mulai Youssef, Sultan of Morocco, to the daughter of El Glaoui Pasha of Mar-rakesh and most powerful Lord of the Atlas district.

The festivities in a setting worthy of and rivaling the Arabian nights began at sunrise yesterday and will last a full week.

The Sultan's son, Mulai Adrish, will marry a woman whose face he never has seen. The bride has not been consulted regarding the choice of her husband and this is not a love match.

Paid for Daughter's Husband.

El Glaoui desirous of putting the finishing touch on his great present supply agreed to produce sufficient gold and jewels to induce the Sultan to permit the son of a prophet to marry the daughter of a Pasha.

This was medicated day, more than 8000 persons, many of whom were poor only for a day, ate under tents set in place just outside the palace of Bahia, the Pasha's residence. Whole herds of sheep and sheep were impaled on the stout limbs of trees and revolved slowly over low fires. Every diner was his own waiter, eager fingers tearing off great strips from the animals. For sweets and pastries 1-00,000 francs were spent by El Glaoui.

The wedding presents brought from mountains and plains by Caid and sheikhs, valued at more than 15,000,000 francs (about 450,000) are displayed in a series of squares, where fountains play against colored tiles. Just as the sun disappeared last evening behind the Atlas range and a holy man from a minaret on the towers of a mosque announced that the daughter of a Pasha was wedding the descendant of the prophet, a cavalcade set forth from the royal palace.

Slaves Set Off Fireworks.

The bridegroom attended by 7000 horsemen bearing torches and rifles paraded through Marrakech.
Vast quantities of fireworks were set off by Negro slaves whose position of servitude was marked by a silver ring piercing one ear.

The real marriage ceremony will take place Wednesday morning. According to the custom, the bridegroom will be washed at the mountain of Medzera Benyoussef and massaged by slaves with the most subtle perfumes. Then the right hand of both bride and groom will be painted with henna by a holy man. The bride will not be allowed to enter the room of her husband until midnight of that evening.

The populace danced in the streets of Marrakech last night to the melancholy music of Arab string instruments of countless orchestras.

El Glaoui, a tall, lean, saw-toothed, rather sinister Moorish chieftain, has achieved his life's ambition—his family has become allied with that of the prophet Mohammed.

REED ORDERS INQUIRY INTO OREGON CAMPAIGN

Publisher Says Utility Man Paid Newspaper $35,000 to Eight Stanfield.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 25.—Inquiry into the Oregon Senate campaign was ordered today by Senator James A. Reed, chairman of the Senate campaign fund investigating committee.

The request for the investigation came from George Putnam, editor and publisher of the Salem (Ore.) Capital-Journal. Reed immediately telegraphed Senators McNary (Rep.) of Oregon, and King (Dem.) of Utah, to conduct the inquiry as soon as they had finished the one now in progress in Washington State.

Putnam asked specifically for an investigation of the campaign of Frederick Stelwer, Republican senatorial candidate, who is opposed by Bert J. Emery (Dem.), and Senator Stanfield (Rep.) who was defeated in the primary.

"I have it on good authority," Putnam's telegram read, "that Franklin K. Griffith of the Portland Electric Co. paid a newspaper $35,000 for opposition to Stanfield, of which $25,000 was sent from headquarters in Philadelphia, and only a Senate investigation can establish the facts. No report was made to the State of this contribution."

McNary directed Bullitt to be prepared to submit documentary evidence in support of his testimony Saturday that he had expended only $17,858.65.

a new gold unit called the belga, and equal approximately to 5 pe-net francs or 35 to the pound sterling, will be issued for foreign transactions. The new unit will be worth about seven to the American dollar.

Stabilization of the currency will be effective from tomorrow, when the new $100,000,000 stabilization loan negotiated in London will be placed on the market. The loan, it is learned, will bear interest at 7 per cent, plus 1 per cent for amortization. It is for a term of 80 years.

Nine state banks have agreed to support the loan: The Federal Reserve Bank of the United States, the Bank of England, the Bank of France, the Reichsbank (of Germany) and similar banks in Japan, Holland, Sweden, Austria and Hungary.

In addition the banks will place $35,000,000 in credits at the disposition of the Bank of Belgium to assist in carrying out the stabilization plans.

The stabilization decree requires that the metallic reserve of the Bank of Belgium be 40 per cent in metal or exchange. At least three-fourths of this must be in gold.

The present gold reserve of the bank is given at 238,000,000 gold francs ($67,400,000), of which 273,000,000 francs are in gold, oppose privileged classes and public always be drastically independent;

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Annexation and County Property Values.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I HAVE lived in Webster Groves for the past six years and own an entire city block.
If annexation is defeated, county real estate will suffer a setback from which it cannot possibly recover for 10 years or more.

We of the county have been shown up right. Heretofore it has pleased our vanity to tell the less fortunate that we live in the county—and get away with it, by gad! But can we do it again today, or, for that matter, can we do it again at any time within the next 10 years?

"He who has goods to sell and goes and whispers down a well, will not bring in the dollars like he who climbs a tree and hollers." We have goods to sell.
The goods are real estate, of which, for some reason or reasons not apparent until now, there has been apoplexy on the market in St. Louis County for years.
And what are the things that we have not? Great Caesar's ghost; it has been trumped abroad that—

We have no sewers; we have no water; we have no police; we have no fire protection; we have no poorhouse; we have no county hospital; we have school teachers, inexperienced, young, lacking the ability to discipline; we have a total debt in all the school districts of the county of $1,553,562, against St. Louis' debt of only $1,745,830; 100,000 people (and that's high for the county), as compared with 800,000 in St. Louis.

But what's the use of going on? Far be it from me to add anything to these already notorious facts. I have five acres of ground in Webster that I am going to want to sell some day, and I suppose there are other people in the county in the same fix.

Out of it all, only one thing is certain—if annexation is defeated on Oct. 26, real estate values are dead in St. Louis County; in fact, they have been almost that for the past three months in Webster.
Due to the buying public having learned a few things about what we have NOT.
Yet the St. Louis tax rate is $2.58, while Webster's tax rate is $4.01.

Where would YOU buy a home now if you lived in the United States and your business was moved to St. Louis, as a great many businesses are annually, and particularly around the first of each year?

And don't overlook this. These businesses are moved to St. Louis not because of Essen County, but the other way around.

Reed's Fitness.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

HENRY W. HEKINGTON, a Republican, seems greatly worried over the prospects of Senator Reed for the Ima-cinated presidential nomination in 1928.
He suggests that Democrats get something to say about the "Pittsburgh Plan" of taxation which embodies a part of the Hon. Jim Reed does get the Democratic nomination in 1928 he will poll the largest vote ever received by a presidential candidate in the history of his country.

Jim Reed is a square shooter and you can't take that away from him. This unpleasant fact, in present day politics, is recognized by the nation over by Democrats and Republicans alike.

When Republicans rush into print advancing the Democrats what to do, it must be conceded that these Republicans have an ulterior motive.
OBSERVER.

The Single Tax Abroad.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

DEPENDENT on the fine sense of this play always to be expected from this great paper, I beg to submit the following. Referring to a recent editorial, captured "Single Tax a Dying Cause," may I please you to learn that it is today a more world-wide, livelier cause than it has ever been? This is best proven by the Copenhagen International Conference on the Taxation of Land Values and Free Trade, which was held in early summer of this year. Twenty-six countries were on the roll of paid members-ship, with 17 different countries represented on the floor of the convention.
Having 2000 delegates. They met in the Danish House of Parliament by Government invitation, and four Government ministers took part in the proceedings.

In the United States a Henry George Congress met at Philadelphia, Sept. 4, 5 and 6, and the meetings were the most enthusiastic and encouraging ever held.
Have you heard of the "Pittsburgh Plan" of taxation which embodies a part of the Henry George principles to the great advantage of the city and its citizens? Do you know that Lloyd George is coquetting with the Henry George plan to gain support from a large Liberal constituency in England? Are you aware that "Progress and Poverty" is translated into all languages, including the Japanese and Chinese? Denmark, Austria, Germany, British Columbia and other lands are at present benefiting from the ideas of the Henry George plan.

Let me also add that among our outstanding statesmen, Thomas Jefferson and Abraham Lincoln would be single taxers, by their expressions show.
"The earth belongs in usufruct to the living."
"The land, the earth God gave to man for his home, sustenance and support.
Should never be the possession of any man, corporation, society or unfriendly government, any more than air or water, is as much."

SENATOR UNDERWOOD'S MESSAGE.

Senator Underwood, on the eve of his retirement from public life, has a message for the American people. It is this: The high rates of the Fordney-McCumber tariff must be reduced. If they are not reduced the world faces financial disaster. Those are not the words of an alarmist, but the carefully considered thought of an able and conservative man, richly experienced in the subject which he discusses.
He is the author of the Underwood tariff bill of 1913, which abrogated the wretched Payne-Aldrich law, upon which the Taft administration floundered. He is not a free-trader, but the advocate of a scientific tariff system which produces revenue and which does not disturb the security of American industry.

Senator Underwood speaks as a statesman when he reviews the changed conditions of international trade since the war, the transformation of this country from a debtor nation into a creditor nation, and the necessity of establishing some kind of balance between this country and Europe. What he tells the Post-Dispatch agrees in main outline, though it proceeds from an entirely different viewpoint, of the points made in the manifesto of bankers and Industrialists of the United States and 14 European nations which was given out last week. It supplements other testimony which the Post-Dispatch has gathered from leading business men of the United States, namely, Benjamin Winchell, president Remington Typewriter Corporation; Jackson Johnson, chairman of the board of the International Shoe Co.; John Jay Watson, president International Agricultural Corporation; Edward A. Filene, president William Filene's Sons Co., Boston.

The whole burden of this testimony is that the present tariff law is unsound and uneconomic, whether viewed from within or from without. Business men say they do not need it, while statesmen and financiers say that it is a barrier to the restoration of the world's economic health. Senator Underwood points out that unless we lower the rates so European goods can come to this country on a reasonable basis, we can have no sound hope for a payment of Europe's debts to us.

The United States has cornered the world's gold reserve; it has gathered European securities, upon which Europe must pay interest; it has lent, between 1920 and 1925, the sum of $5,000,000,000 to Europe; it has developed its shipping; it has cut off immigration. All of these things conspire to prevent Europe from getting on its feet and reduce that continent to the necessity of begging more money unless it can pay us in goods and services. The tariff law fore-stalls this way out. Thus, in Senator Underwood's opinion, it is only a question of time before the inexorable working of economic laws will force a financial catastrophe whose effects will react against us.

Senator Underwood's message is pregnant with meaning.

SENATOR WILLIAMS AND ALEXANDER.

When Alexander was called into the last game of the world series he observed that with the bases full there was no place to put Lazzeri, so he struck him out.

Senator Williams of Missouri does not have to pitch like that in our own senatorial series. He says prohibition is not a political question, but unlike Alexander he has a place to put it. There is a prohibition candidate for United States Senator running in Missouri. He is Herman P. Paris of Clinton, candidate for the United States Senate upon the regular prohibition ticket.

"If the people of Missouri had what they want, they would elect a dry Senator," says this hopeful aspirant, who is quite willing to relieve Senator Williams of prohibition and means to clean up with it.
I did not seek the nomination for United States Senator," he says. "I was drafted by the National and State committees."

All the better. It was thrust upon him. The office seeks the man, an ideal of democracy from time remote. What a blushing figure! What a rebuke to all the other office seekers running!

We congratulate Senator Williams. He has somewhere to put prohibition, and it is in good hands. He is no Alexander, but he has there with the water pitcher at a pinch.

Smile: As busy as Senator Reed's one-man investigating committee.

RUSSIA AND THE Y. M. C. A.

Expulsion of the Y. M. C. A. from Russia follows the spirited wars between church and state in Turkey and Mexico. The former head of the Mohammedan church is banished from Turkey, and he has as yet no place to set up the caliphate formerly maintained at Constantinople. In Mexico the church is still on strike against the strictures of the Government and no religious services are held in the Catholic churches of Mexico.

It is part of the same ferment that excludes the Y. M. C. A. from Russia. Those three countries are all seeking with revolt against the formerly established order, including religion. The soviet banish the Y. M. C. A. because they feel that it is economically out of sympathy with the economic policy of the Government. This lies also at the bottom of the wars between church and state in Turkey and Mexico.

The Y. M. C. A. has done a great deal of good work in Europe. It has done a great deal of good work in Russia. It does not, however, possess an authority which those countries or any country is likely to put above its own political and economic dicta. That religious organizations can take too great a part in such disputes has just been proved by what happened in Detroit. For seven years the American Federation of Labor had been accustomed to fill the pulpits of churches in cities where it held its annual convention. It was invited to do so by the churches of Detroit. The Y. M. C. A. had extended such an invitation in July, but withdrew it upon the eve of the convention. It was quite plain why the Y set this example.
It has on a $5,000,000 building campaign, to which the three great nonunion industrialists of Detroit—Ford, Fisher and Kresge—have given respectively $1,500, $500,000 and $300,000. The directorate of the Y in Detroit includes Truman H. Newberry, from whom we have the Newberry primary scandal, and Charles Beecher Warren, whom the Senate refused to accept as Attorney-General because he had organized the Sugar Trust.

If the Y in Russia was anything like the Y in Detroit, it is no wonder at all that it has been banished. It could not long survive on the Detroit plan in any country.

ANNEXATION AND LOCAL GOVERNMENT.

Judge Rosenfeld, chairman of the committee in charge of the annexation campaign, has admirably answered the objection that annexation would destroy local government.

As a member of the Board of Freeholders which drafted the St. Louis Charter, Judge Rosenfeld is quite familiar with the provision which contemplates a borough system by which any community desiring to govern itself may do so with the consent of the Board of Aldermen. He says:

Under the City Charter, if consolidation is successful, a borough system for any of the present incorporated towns, Webster Groves, Kirkwood, Ferguson, any of them, may be authorized upon request of those towns. A borough system, in practice meaning local handling of a town's local improvements, as practiced and defined in New York, Pennsylvania and elsewhere, can be had for the asking.

Under section 33 of the Charter the city is fully authorized to grant the borough system to any established community center, such as towns mentioned. It would do so. I call to mind the instance of the Cabanne improvement group within the present city, who were authorized to improve part of Cabanne avenue, to maintain and keep it in repair, and this group carried on the work. This instance is but illustrative.

The existing incorporated towns are now taxing themselves for local improvements, and if they desire to carry on and further desire to control the conduct of their people in relation to local subjects, there is no reason why the authority would not be granted. This phase of the situation has not been considered at all. In fact, the Charter provision has been overlooked by the antagonists of the consolidation plan. The fact that a consolidation will bring into the city new conditions and problems of established towns with their customs and needs, and those of farm districts, will occasion a provision for certain local autonomy.

That ought to comfort people in the county who wish to help the city and still dislike to give up some of the good things about local government. There is a way to accomplish both objects, and the Post-Dispatch believes it will appeal to the citizens making up the populations of the county towns. Those people are for the most part St. Louis people, some of them as fine citizens as we have. It is quite possible for them to retain local government in the county towns and still join the county with the city, and after all they would much rather follow the fortunes of the city than those of the county politicians.

SELLING AVIATION.

The fine spirit of sportsmanship which signalized every step of the Byrd expedition to the North Pole, from the treacherous landing of the ships at Spitzbergen to the epoch-making flight over the polar sea, is still being kept alive by Commander Byrd and his clear-eyed associate, Floyd Bennett.

Other men and women have capitalized great achievement in sport and exploration. The Granges and the Lenglens have turned to the professional field, the Amundsens to the lecture platform and the great figures of boxing, golf and swimming to the stage and the movies, or the advertising pages of the magazines. Even our own great Alex had his week before the footlights.

It remained for Byrd and Bennett to ignore the call of commercialism. Carrying on with their own slim pay in the naval service of the United States, they have unselfishly dedicated the fruits of their polar flight to the advancement of commercial flying. Both have turned down the dozens of offers to make money which were tendered them as the first men to fly over the pole.

Byrd has turned over his own airplane, the Fokker monoplane in which the flight was made, for a transcontinental tour, to increase interest in flying, and Bennett, working without pay, is taking the ship across the country, speaking without pay, wherever anyone will listen to him, of the great things that are to be expected of aviation.

His appearance here last week emphasizes the fact that not a single worker of a great flying exploit has turned his achievement to money. The one idea of the men in the flying game, apparently, is to sell aviation to the public. The trumpeting call of commercialism to the flyer is drowned out by the roar of his own motor.

If it had not been for Mr. Hawes the roads would not be good enough in rainy weather for many Mis-sourians to get to the polls to vote for anybody.

THE CATHODE RAY.

Perhaps blazing balls of incandescence will be delivered in the near future at your doorstep, in much the same way that the milkman now meets your daily needs for milk. These radiant spheres will represent your daily or weekly supply of house-lighting material. At least this is one of the possibilities conjured up after reading the story of Dr. William David Coolidge's experimental demonstration of his cathode ray machine in the research laboratory of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, N. Y.

Dr. Coolidge's new vacuum tube, energized by a 350,000-volt electric current, produces the same amount of mysterious force as is emitted from a ton of radium, worth $100,000,000,000. Under the impact from this so-called Delta ray, marble and granite give off a dazzling light and, after the power is shut off, these and other substances experimented with continue to glow for hours and days, with a perfectly cold light. The mind is intrigued with the thought that there may be discovered some light-absorbing substance which can be turned into commercial canned illumination, produced in the factory and dispensed by the box or bottle. Perhaps even artificial radium can be manufactured.

This cathode ray turns castor oil into a solid in a fraction of a second, and aluminum, under its influence, becomes coated with an unknown substance so resistant to heat that it will not melt in an electric furnace. One flash from the power tube on the ear of a rabbit, and shortly a profuse new growth of hair is created. Soon the bald-headed row may be remembered only as a tradition. One-tenth of a second's exposure to this ray and dangerous bacteria die. Can it be so controlled as to rid the human body of deadly germs?

Dr. Coolidge, by his discoveries, has opened up a wonderful avenue of research to the scientific world.

TRAFFIC COPS.

Some people consider traffic cops a necessary evil.
Like having to work.
Or neighbors.
Or relatives.
Or children who play the piano.
Or people who recite "The Shooting of Dan McGregor."

But the very people who dislike traffic cops are the ones who squawk.
And raise a din with their horns When caught in a traffic jam.
I like traffic cops:
They are human beings.
During the world series There was one standing at Vandeventer and Page
Directing traffic
And holding a bouquet which some one had given him.
I looked first at him, then at the flowers And smiled back.
He looked at me, then at the flowers,
And smiled back.
Another time, I was standing at Eighth and Olive.
And the traffic cop had signalled East and west traffic to proceed.
But a woman going east just sat at the wheel of her machine.
And did nothing, not even powder her nose;
The cop shook his head.
And started to walk over to her machine.
And on the way over I caught his eye:
I was enjoying the situation.
So he saw that it was funny.
And grinned back.
I hope he said,
"Madam, pray proceed."

Traffic cops are patient, too.
And I can prove it.
When the Cardinals came home, I walked down to Broadway and Washington.
Because I like crowds.
And (if you must know the reason) I wanted a seat on the bus.
The cop had given the signal to go ahead.
And one fellow in a Buick just sat there,
And honked his horn.
I would have given him a piece of my mind,
And wrapped a fender around his ear.
But the cop did not say anything.
Imagine that happening about 10 times a day!

Picture being out in all kinds of weather.
And you cannot blame traffic cops For bawling people out Now and then.
Traffic cops are necessary.
Kingshighway is being repaired.
And the traffic at Page avenue Proceeds smoothly every morning.
Because it is being directed;
But at 8 o'clock at night, When there is no policeman there, It would take three monkey wrenches, Seven crowbars, a crane,
And a case of dynamite to straighten out The tangle.

Sentinel Norris' invasion of Pennsylvania in support of William B. Wilson has jolted the Vire camp, we are informed. Then something can jolt them, eh?
Dancing as a prerequisite to sports is being taught at the University of Wisconsin.
Now the more serious minded students can work after hours without being called grinds.

The Ku Klux Klan, we are informed, has been made a definite issue in the campaign.
But as the Klan is not 25 years old, and as we persist in the belief that one of the candidates has no definite issues, we fear there is a mistake somewhere.
One point in favor of short skirts is the wind cannot blow them above the wearer's knees.

A contemporary, commenting on Senator Reed's disclosures, says, "Senator Reed seems to have struck rich dirt in his latest prying into G. O. P. affairs." This is the first instance, to our knowledge, where the expression "rich dirt" means "rich dirt."

Chicago gang leaders are said to have buried the hatchet, but we will believe in the truce only when we read that they have buried the machine guns and scrapped the tanks.
The Ku Klux Klan, we are informed, has been made a definite issue in the campaign.
But as the Klan is not 25 years old, and as
we persist in the belief that one of the can-

THE NON-VOTER MENACE.

From the Chattanooga Times.
It is an unusual thing for 50 per cent of the electorate to go to the polls in natu-al, state, county or municipal elections, when voting follows campaigns that expenditure of vast amounts of money to get out the vote, balloting frequently in light as to reduce the exercise of the choice to a farce. This lack of sufficient interest in candidates and public issues cause men and women to express themselves through their ballots lies at the bottom much that is wrong with present day government. If crooks get into office, obviously the good citizens who fail to vote are responsible for it. If Legislatures pass bad laws, those otherwise good citizens take no interest in selecting members of their Legislatures must be largely to blame. So long as such men and women to exercise the franchise, they ought to a sense of responsibility and shame every shortcoming of their Government for every scandal connected with it.

The much repeated statement that the production has "the most beautiful girls in the world" is wrong. They must have stopped off somewhere. There are two or three good looking girls, and one big brunette is decidedly nice, but the general run would grade between C and D. Miss Irene French, in one scene, is protected from the chill October air only by a large silk blossom, something like a cauliflower. She has very pretty teeth and a winsome half smile.

Bare legs and arms and bodies have been displayed upon the stage for several seasons now, and the kick, somehow, is gone out of the display. Underwear is the chief item in the costuming account, and pieces similar to those shown can be seen in the windows of any good department store. It must be the fun that brings out the crowd.

There is one serious item on the bill. A brief story of an American artist and a model in Paris. War comes on, he returns to France as "Captain of his regiment" and dies in the arms of the model, now a nurse. Two minutes for the song and story—and quite enough. There is also one scene of much beauty. Behind a transparent curtain, certain of the undressed girls are silhouetted against the light in designs as attractive as figures on a Greek urn. There is nothing on the rest of the show to indicate how this beautiful passage found a place on the bill.

Richard Dix almost dies for God, for country and for dear old Colton in "The Quarterback" at the Missouri this week, but as he lies prostrate on the sideline his girl yells "Come and go to work for me." In Latin, and she springs up, a good broken field runner and a man reborn. Just before his girl yelled at him in Latin the score, we believe, was 10 to 7 in favor of State, but afterwards Richard grabbed a long pass and went over for the winning touchdown. The Latin classes at Washington University should remember this phrase for use against Missouri. It won a game for Colton and enabled Jack Stone's father, who had been in school 27 years waiting for Colton to beat State, to graduate.

Despite a childish plot for which William McGeehan and William Slavens McNutt are responsible, "The Quarterback" manages to be rare entertainment. The refreshing boisterousness of college youth and lassies are solemnly presented as earnest life and one almost believes for a time that a fraternity pin is the badge of nobility and a football triumph worth sliding about on a muddy field. The hazing episodes are humorous and the action scenes of the big game perfectly done. Dix is in his proper meter registering undergraduate emotions and Esther Ralston would paralyze any stage line on any campus in the land.

Is That So? "There are two bad weeks in the show business. Christmas week and the week in St. Louis."

To this tradition Mr. George Behan refers in a curtain speech closing his performances at the Ambassador this week. "St. Louis is noted for its critical theater audiences," he says, "and if a show is received coldly here it will be a knockout in the rest of the country."

"The Loves of Ricardo," therefore, should be the hit of the year. It left us positively frigid. Aside from the novelty of seeing a motion picture cast on the screen and on the stage in the same play on the same evening, the latest Behan effort contains little to thaw the heart. He wastes a great deal of time portraying the simple emotions of an unkempt looking Italian who loves a parrot, a horse and a girl with equal graces.

"Civilize 'Em With Krag." "Across the Pacific" at the Grand Central and West End Lyric is a good picture. Its effort to reconstruct the bold adventure in imperialism which sent good men and true into the Philippines to hunt down Aguinaldo deserves applause. Some of the battle scenes in the jungle are the equal of anything in "The Big Parade." It is somewhat reminiscent. The story contains a certain amount of whoop-la and tripe, but it is lusty in the making of war, and Monte Blue plays the soldier with much credit. The bugles sound and the Krag bark and Filipino bite the dust. Hurray for the red, white and blue!

Buckets of Blood. A rambling Westerner, the saga of three noble bad men, and an evil-minded Sheriff, succeeds very well at Loew's State this week, in keeping an audience waiting for the next shot. Photography in motion pictures has so developed that any good camera man, given Western scenery and some picturesque characters, can't fail to take an interesting movie. If you do not care for the story of "The Three Bad Men" you'll enjoy the setting. The plot lacks concentration on any character with the result that it often wanders around the horizon waiting for a place to light. Lou Tellegen, as usual, is ridiculously villainous and George O'Brien, who carries the love interest, has very little to do between times. Of the bad men one is shot with a rifle, the second blows himself up with dynamite and the third is shot with a revolver. Thus there is variety for all types of movie fans.

Below the Line. Good gang drama is on tap this week at the St. Louis, where "The Blue Eagle" is featured. Two gang leaders, both Irish, love the same girl. They have two first-rate fights and there is much shooting in dark alleys. But after considerable controversy George O'Brien gets the girl and every-body joins an American Legion post.

FILES CHARGES WITH COOLIDGE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—The Better Government League has requested President Coolidge to take disciplinary action against Herbert

D. Brown, chief of the Bureau of Efficiency, for alleged maladministration of the personnel classification act.

In a letter to the President, Elery C. Stowell, president of the league, complained that Senator Smoot (Rep.) of Utah, dominated Brown and "a plan of classification not in accord with the act was substituted for the plans specifically provided by the act." A similar complaint was made to Mr. Coolidge, the letter recalled, in January.

two trucks equipped with bells and merger signs to traverse the heavily settled suburban area adjacent to the city all day.

President Forshaw of the County Annexation League, in a statement, declared that arguments against the city expansion of 1876, concerning treatment of the territory taken in, were the same as those advanced now against the merger, and he said the 1876 objections had been proven unfounded.

Statement of F. W. Lehmann, Frederick W. Lehmann, former Solicitor-General of the United States and a city member of the Board of Freeholders which drafted the merger scheme, says in a statement issued by the Greater St. Louis Committee:

"The city is growing westwardly and is in fact occupying the county. Residents of the territory do not recognize geographical limits which are invisible and in St. Louis cannot be defined. The consolidation plan appeals to me as of high service to the people of the whole community as one. It will afford an efficient government with fixed responsibility of offices and will render the service demanded by the growth of the city to its citizens and commerce, and will supply the multitude of municipal service required by the county people on account of its extraordinary development. The adoption of the consolidation plan would be of historical credit to a reunited people and place the city in the forefront of American cities."

Opponents Distribute Paper.

Opponents of merger yesterday distributed widely in the county a publication in the guise of a newspaper, devoted entirely to anti-annexation propaganda, and entitled "The St. Louis County American." Its editorial page says it was issued by the County Defense League, 1907 Forsythe boulevard, Clayton, and the editors are L. John Weber and Rolla Wetzel. The price is given as "free in St. Louis County, 10 cents elsewhere." A number of the articles and illustrations have been published previously in the county newspaper of Essen and other county papers. The "American" asserts that annexation would confiscate county homes and other property, result in closing of many county schools and disfranchise county voters, and it attacks the city newspapers, which are supporting merger.

"The shooting of a Washington University student within the city limits early Sunday by a St. Louis County Deputy Constable," says a statement of the City-County Consolidation Committee, "is a serious instance of the aggravated state of lawlessness which exists in the county. It is an isolated case only in so far as it is tragic. Otherwise, it is typical of conditions which prevail. Citizens of the county are well aware of the general prevalence of lawlessness but they have seemed to be helpless, notwithstanding the zealous desire of the majority for a change for the better. If the merger plan carries, the county will be assured of metropolitan police protection."

MELLON SAYS U. S. NEEDS TARIFF, BUT EUROPE DOES NOT

wages the United States will continue to be of great economic benefit to other nations; but any economic policy that will occasion unemployment and reduce its purchasing power will diminish this country's consumption of commodities and cause larger surpluses of the world's principal products and result in serious financial losses to them.

Citing the famous Aluminum Company of America, of which he is a leading stockholder, as an example, Mellon said that removal of the present protective tariff on aluminum products would result in that company's expanding its plants abroad, instead of those in this country.

Removal Would Hurt U. S. "If the present tariff on aluminum is maintained," he maintained, "developments for the expansion of domestic business will be made in the United States. If it is removed, these developments will occur in foreign countries and part of the American market supplied from abroad where labor is cheaper."

"The effect would not in the least be to hurt the Aluminum company, but to deprive the United States of an enlarged manufacturing here. Less capital will be invested here and less labor employed."

"The same condition holds true of a great many other large manufacturing industries in the United States. If the tariff is taken off, a larger share of manufacturing will be done abroad where the costs are less."

should be left to the higgling of the market. "Unless some deterrent arises, the enormous profits of some of the controls already in operation will not only serve to stimulate unreasonable prices for other controlled products, but will serve to encourage attempts upon similar commodities. It is the belief of the department that this development will be retarded by the demonstration of practical defense action in the case of rubber during the past fiscal year."

The "defensive measures" against rubber prices—longer use and more repairs—which were successful in breaking the first high prices for that commodity, might well be extended, he suggested. If the other foreign controls should attempt a "mutilating" of the American consumer.

Are You Overdoing? Hurry, Worry and Overwork Bring Heavy Strain

MODERN life throws a heavy burden on our bodily machinery. We are inclined to work too hard, worry too much and get too little rest, fresh air and exercise. Consequently we are apt to experience many functional disturbances of the bodily mechanism.

Good health requires good elimination. The kidneys are the blood filters. If they fail to fully perform their functions, body poisons are left in the blood and as a result one is apt to feel languid, tired and aching. A dull, nagging headache is sometimes a symptom, with drowsy headaches and dizzy spells.

More and more people are learning to assist their kidneys in this condition by drinking plenty of pure water and occasional use of Doan's Pills—a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys. Users everywhere endorse Doan's. Ask your neighbor!

ST. LOUIS BUILT DIESEL ENGINES FOR U. S. SHIPS

Shipping Board Commissioners Inspect $1,000,000 Worth of Machinery Constructed Here.

PUBLIC HEARING ON MERCHANT MARINE

Purpose Is to Gather Data for Report on Maintenance of Shipping Facilities.

Inspection of $1,000,000 worth of the United States Shipping Board of St. Louis-built Diesel engines for was the first act of two Commissioners of the Board in St. Louis today for a public hearing at noon at the Chamber of Commerce, on the Jones resolution calling for submission to the Senate of plans for continuing an adequate merchant marine.

The engines, weighing 1,000,000 pounds each, are nearing completion at the Busch-Sulzer Bros. Diesel Engine Co., 3200 South Second street. They have six cylinders each of 30-inch bore by 52-inch stroke and at 900 revolutions a minute turn up 8000 horse-power. Each engine, taken down to fill the least space possible, will require 13 railroad cars for shipment.

Fuel-Saving Engines.
St. Louis is a long way from the sea, but here in 1895 was built what is said to have been the first Diesel engine placed in commercial operation. August A. Busch, president of the concern, in wartime turned over the plant to the navy and more than 70 submarine engines were built there.

The St. Louis contract, said Commissioner Jefferson, is one of the largest of the seven such that the board has let. Engines of different Diesel types are being constructed in other cities. Altogether, 14 Shipping Board vessels are being converted to Diesel power, using engines built under these contracts. The engines here are of such efficiency that they will reduce the amount of fuel consumed daily in each ship from 35 tons to 13½ tons.

Public Hearing Here.
Commissioner Philip S. Teller, who, with Commissioner Myers, conducted the hearing today, is chairman of the Shipping Board Planning Committee. The Jones resolution calls for submission of plans by Jan. 1 for maintaining an adequate merchant marine through private capital and private ownership or through Government construction, operation and ownership.

"St. Louis should be deeply interested," said Chairman Teller, "as the very heart of a great manufacturing, producing and shipping center. Its people should be of considerable assistance in furnishing data for compilation of the report called for."

Government Aid Favored.
"The consensus, as we have found it in a tour of the entire West, is fairly represented in the answer given by the Mississippi Valley Association to our questionnaire. It seems to be generally held that the Government must back the merchant marine until it reaches the stage where it may be operated, without fear of failure, by private capital."

Myers remarked that the commissioners had slept in a bed only four times in the three weeks since they began the series of hearings. They arrived here last night from Denver, and will depart tonight for Cincinnati.

FIVE-DAY WEEK OPPOSED BY LEADING INDUSTRIES

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Oct. 25.—The National Association of Manufacturers has just made public a symposium of opinions expressed by executives of 32 leading industrial organizations throughout the country of the five-day labor week.

The consensus was that general adoption of the reduced basic working week, as proposed by Henry Ford and endorsed by the American Federation of Labor, would:

Increase the cost of living; increase wages by 15 per cent and decrease production; prove impracticable for all industries; create a craving for additional luxuries to occupy the additional spare time, causing a "trend to the arena—Rome did that and died;" react against the best interests of workmen who desire to advance; make the United States more vulnerable to economic onslaught from Europe.

The only approximate favorable reply noted was that the scheme "would be all right to meet a sales emergency, but would not work out as a permanent thing."

$10,000 TO BE REPAYED

TO CITY EMPLOYEES

Mayor, Explaining Liquidation of Benefit Association, Denies It Was Political.

Thirty-two hundred city employees who have been contributing part of their salaries to the Municipal Employees' Benefit Association since its organization a year ago will share between $10,000 and $11,000 as a result of its voluntary liquidation. Those receiving $150 or more have been paying 1 per cent of their salaries, others one-half as much.

Trustees of the fund were Mayor Miller, Directors Salisbury, Brod and Brooks and Marshall Duffy. In a statement today, Mayor Miller said the trustees had decided to discontinue the association and return all contributions.

"There has been an unfounded impression that this was to be used as a political fund," said Mayor Miller. "That was not the intention when this fund was created. It was planned that the money collected should be used to make loans to needy city employees, and definite plans were under way for the erection of cottages and establishing recreation grounds for the benefit of city employees."

"Were it possible to carry these things into effect, benefits would have been derived by many city employees. Not one penny of this fund has been spent for any political purpose of any character. The only withdrawals have been for loans to needy and deserving employees. All contributions will be returned intact."

Trade Body Dismisses Complaint.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25.—Dismissal of complaints against the Eclipse Foundry and Penit Corporation of New York City is announced by the Federal Trade Commission. "The complaint alleged the corporation marketed pens and containers with exaggerated prices so that retailers might create an impression that they were of unusual value at the actual selling prices."

Miracles Are Performed

Here is one performed on John W. Bucher of Chicago, Illinois. Just back from having his doctor, two operations, seven years of misery, practically crippled with kidney trouble, unable to eat, no money, no hope of ever getting well.

This man's life was unquestionably saved through Dr. Duplantier's Gas and Indigestion Remedy. He has recovered that acid poison from his stomach, brought back a normal digestion, removed all gas, gained strength and peace around his heart, removed that feeling of a nervous wreck.

He is now well and happy, man, enjoying a joyful appetite, and holds a lovely position as traveling salesman, and all that for only a few boxes of Dr. Duplantier's Gas and Indigestion Tablets.

A Cleaner Home A Cleaner City

Both are within reach this Winter. Families are learning how to fire their furnaces so that only "cold" smoke leaves the chimney. This means more heat is obtained from less coal, and less smoke leaves the chimney. You can fire your furnace this new way.

Visit the Furnace Firing School

Take an hour soon to visit the Furnace Firing School and see the new method of firing demonstrated. Seven types of furnaces and several kinds of coal are used. Demonstrations daily, 8 a. m. to 10 p. m. Hodiernmont and Olive Street road.

SIGN LANGUAGE USED FOR DEAF AT FUNERAL

Interpreter Relays Spoken Words to Mourners at Services for Dr. Cloud.

The sign language of the deaf supplemented the oral language of the hearing at the funeral services in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday afternoon for the Rev. Dr. James Henry Cloudy, pastor, educator and friend of the deaf, who died Wednesday in his sixty-fifth year.

From 1890 until his death he had conducted St. Thomas' Mission to the Deaf in Christ Church Cathedral. He also was missionary to the deaf in dioceses of Missouri, Kansas and Colorado. From 1890 until 1922 he was principal of the Gallaudet public school for the deaf.

Hundreds of deaf filled the pews. Long before the appointed hour they began streaming in. Members of the congregation of St. Thomas usually worship in the Boffinger chapel, but yesterday they sat in the cathedral proper. Deaf ushers pointed out the seats. There were others besides the deaf—Episcopal clergy, laymen and representatives of other denominations.

The services were conducted by Dr. Cloudy's friends and fellow workers of many years' standing. Bishop Frederick F. Johnson, in charge, read the prayers, the Rev. Edmund Duckworth the Psalms, and Canon C. E. Remick the lesson. Congregational singing followed with Arthur Davis at the organ.

For the benefit of the deaf, a woman interpreter translated the spoken words into signs. Standing at the top of the choir steps, where she could be seen by all, her white hands flashing against the background of a black dress, registering sorrow, resignation and hope. It was impressive, and many wept.

Interment followed in Memorial Park Cemetery.

The Rev. Dr. Cloudy is survived by his widow and four children.

Gowns Queen and Princess Are Wearing on American Tour

SILVESTRE DORIAN.
Director of the Paris Fashion Board.

PARIS, Oct. 13.

DRAWINGS of Queen Marie's and Princess Ileana's most important gowns for their American visit were rushed to the Leviathan—on which the Queen sailed.

These drawings are fresh from the hands of the famous couturiers who have designed the gowns. Patou and Redfern have made them and their fashion artists, under the immediate direction of the great couturiers themselves, made the drawings. These are somewhat lacking in detail, because of the rush in getting them away, but they are correct in line and design. From them American women will be able to see just what the best dressed Queen in Europe is wearing on her visit to the United States.

The prevailing colors in these dresses are purple, for which the Queen has shown a marked preference. Among them will be seen numerous orchids and deeper purple shades. Velvets predominate, for they continue to be on the top of the fashion wave here in Paris. There are also some wholly charming combinations of silver and gold lace with purple velvets.

For Princess Ileana, blues have been in particular favor, particularly blue velvets. The afternoon dresses for both the Queen and her daughter are somewhat elaborate, even ornate, and here again blues and purples are in the ascendency.

Redfern is one of the three original big couturiers of Paris, having opened his establishment in the rue de Rivoli in 1831, when Doucet and Worth were the only other members of the Haute Couture, who identified Paris as the world capital of fashion.

He dressed every Queen of his time and still makes dresses for most of the reigning courts of Europe. In a quiet room in his spacious maison overlooking the Tuilleries Gardens, he has preserved in its original condition a room where fittings were made for the Queens only. It is now passed—the lighting arrangement and the mirrors and all the furnishings are plainly of days long gone—but so few of the Queens remain who visited it often, that Monsieur Redfern cherishes this old room with a strange fondness. On its walls hang the Royal Arms of all the royal families of Europe, for it was there that the ill-fated Czarina of Russia and her daughters were fitted. There, too, the Empress of Germany and Austria and Hungary were draped with the rich materials they wore at their courts, and Queen Victoria, Queen Alexandra and all the Queens of Scandinavia have made their pilgrimages to it. Monsieur Redfern, now a man of advanced years, has many fond memories of his long association with all these royal personages.

For many years, Monsieur Redfern has been Queen Marie's dressmaker. It may be said that the House of Redfern, although by no means lacking in prestige, represents the older regime in the fashions of Paris today, whereas M. Patou's quite as representative of the newer or present-day school.

Although M. Patou received a very thorough apprenticeship in several of the establishments of well-known couturiers it was not until after the war that he obtained sufficient financial backing to open the House of Patou.

With Americans this couturier has ever been a prime favorite, and quite deservedly, for didn't he two years ago travel extensively through the states to study the American woman in her home environment so that he might understand her needs and requirements and design for her costumes that would express her as an American?

In order to thus interpret through French eyes American clothes for American women to a nicely he took back with him to Paris six of the most beautiful and representative of American girls as manikins.

Quite natural, therefore, for Queen Marie to turn to M. Redfern, who has dressed her from a little girl for her more formal wardrobe, those of queenly dignity, and to M. Patou for the clothes that because of their American feeling would appeal to the women who will meet her, and who, unlike, will judge her to a certain extent at any rate, clothes-wise.

It is largely because of M. Patou's desire to interpret French fashions in an American way that the models for the outdoor are considered his specialty. To his American clientele, therefore, the clothes he has designed for Queen Marie will be of exceptional interest, for they will understand that he created them with the American viewpoint always to the fore.

Chapter 54.

DORIS was still sitting by the fire when the wife of the caretaker, old and silent like himself, came in with a dinner tray. Doris watched her idly while she laid the cloth on the table which she drew close to the hearth, arranged the covered dishes from which came the most appetizing aromas and trimmed the candles. She was quiet, efficient and showed no trace of curiosity or interest in the guest she served. For that reason, as well as for others, Doris forbore to question her. No doubt, as Hartley had said, his servants were faithful to his orders. Doris felt that she would only lose dignity, make something of a fool of herself, if she tried bribery or showed that she knew herself to be a prisoner.

She noted that the table was laid for one place only. There was no sign of Hartley.

Doris made an excellent meal. Afterward, she read awhile by the fire. There were recent books in a rack on the center table. Later, the woman returned, took away the tray and brought toilet articles, a nightgown and a negligee and slippers.

Evidently Hartley had thought of everything. Quite early Doris was sleepy after the long ride in the open car. She went to bed, not even troubling to examine the door to her room, for she had heard the key click in the lock when the woman went out. It was no idle boast of her self-appointed host that she was under lock and key.

When she awoke, the fog had cleared and bright sunlight flooded her room. The weather was still warm and unseasonable. The caretaker's wife brought hot water and coffee and crisp rolls on a tray.

Later, Hartley knocked at the door and admitted himself in response to Doris' permission. "Good morning," he said calmly, quite as if this were the most conventional situation in the world, "would you care for a bit of fresh air and sunshine? The roof is a pleasant place to walk and the view is superb."

He led Doris upward by a narrow, winding, stone stairway and, they stepped out on a flat, broad roof, guarded by a stone parapet. They looked down on a sea of trees, pines and hemlocks. The trees stretched in unbroken profusion in every direction—the chateau was fairly in the heart of a forest. Directly below the tower, Doris saw the silvery, winding surface of a small river.

This was evidently a fortress in medieval times," explained Hartley. "They had a charming little habit in those days of sliding troublesome prisoners into Eternity through a trapdoor into the river. I dare say you are not the first lovely princess to be imprisoned in the tower room," he added with a smile.

To his relief she smiled in return. He was rather perplexed by her pleasant greeting, her apparently calm acceptance of her fate, though her quick adaptation to circumstances, as evidenced on the Riviera, should have prepared him.

"It must have been rather fun to be in a besieged castle," she remarked thoughtfully. "I wonder what the princesses thought about, while the enemy—or the rescuer—battered at the gates?"

"They probably rejoiced in the eternal feminine way when they saw men fighting each other to the death for their hand. We use subtler weapons these days, but the principle is the same. I rather fancy the old high-handed methods myself."

"I can't be done in the twentieth century," she warned him.

"You think so?" his lips tightened, but he smiled.

She turned and walked away from him along the parapet. Through a rift in the trees she saw a thin spiral of blue smoke spreading across the cloudless horizon, driven and scattered by the breeze of a breeze.

She pointed to it. "What is that?" she asked idly.

"The smoke from a train," he answered. "The railway we might have taken runs through there. The station is a bit beyond."

Doris resolved to remember that detail. He smiled as if he divined her thoughts, but he was very confident.

On her side, she was thinking that if she did manage an escape from the chateau, she would follow some clever and original plan. She would not make herself ridiculous by attempting tactics which he had anticipated and against which he was prepared.

They descended from the roof. He accompanied her to the door of her apartments, and left her. She lunched alone, nor did she see him again that day.

It was quite evident that he wished her to understand that her incarceration was really for the purpose he had set forth—that he had no intention of taking advantage of their seclusion to press his attentions upon her.

The sunlight had faded and again the heavy fog crept up. It was gray and menacing and the warm, unseasonable temperature persisted. But the chateau was damp and chill, with the chill of unoccupancy, and Doris was glad to stay close to the cheerful fire.

She fell to thinking of Paris and her apartment, of Count Romeo, and her friends, who must wonder at her absence. She had told the little French woman who served as her maid-companion, that she was going to pay a visit to her friends, Mrs. Cushing and Mr. Hartley Sr., who were shortly sailing for America. She had not stipulated the length of her visit and Marie would see no cause for concern at her absence.

As for the Count, Doris believed that he would chafe a little, but he was helpless. And Camilla so rarely rang up, that she was not worth worrying about.

In the latter conclusion, Doris was mistaken. Camilla did ring up.

The following evening Hartley received a wire from Cannes: "Your father seriously ill. Think you had better come at once."

The message had been forwarded from his Paris address. It was signed: "Aunt Emily."

Hartley caught the evening train from the little country station, leaving Doris alone at the chateau with her two faithful guardians.

Making Clothes Fit Moods

By Lucrezia Bori

I WISH women would wear clothes that blend with their particular mood of the hour. If they did there would be more beautiful women.

Sober garments and a merry mood just naturally won't mix. Vague and impractical as this may sound, let me show you how true it is.

Some women are especially happy and buoyant put on your most sedate dress. Then observe how your mood changes. Perceptibly a feeling of being "let down" will pervade you. Things you are trying to accomplish get slightly mixed up. A dissatisfied note will make itself felt, and before you fully realize what has happened you will be depressed. All this change of humor, or mood, will be due largely to the subtle influence of the two conflicting emotions, happiness and gloom.

Now there are times when the donning of the sedate frock will fit your mood perfectly. When this is the case, wear it, for nothing else you can wear will be so becoming.

A very dear friend of mine who has learned how clothes affect one's disposition recently told me of her experiences while mastering this art. She said:

"My first intuition that clothes could materially change one's mood came when I was in college. We were cramming for an examination, and this particular morning I awoke filled with enthusiasm for the study ahead of me. Having no classes until 10 o'clock, I slipped into my mules and negligee, deciding to dress later. Books open in front of me, pencils and paper handy, my studying began."

"But I just couldn't keep my mind from drifting away to other things. The new shoes I had seen in a shop window, the dress I should have sent to the cleaners, an appointment at the beauty shop. Finally I gave up, dressed and walked over the campus to class, smoldering myself soundly. I was pleasantly surprised to find that I made a good recitation and returned to my room in a mood to study. The mood stayed this time and I finished my work."

"Similar occurrences led me to wonder why. I found the answer lay in dressing to study when I got up instead of dressing to lounge around. Now, by dressing to suit my mood I harmonize myself, and when this has been accomplished that horrid 'I wonder how I look' feeling is gone. Left in its stead is the knowledge of ease and grace so essential to physical charm and beauty."

MEDITATIONS OF A MARRIED WOMAN

By HELEN ROWLAND

ANY man who couldn't be coerced into marriage by a hesitant angel, has been rushed into it, by an enterprising little devil.

So often, the man who was "through with women" at 20, turns into the kind who is not anywhere near through with them.

If you want a man to love you, forever, don't ask him to love you more than a day. A man hates to deal his heart out at wholeheartedly, but he will cheerfully go on dealing it out to you at retail just as you never remind him of tomorrow.

When a man finds out that his wife doesn't understand or "appreciate" him, you may be pretty sure that he has had another woman in making the discovery.

Sometimes, a husband, a garment, or a servant that lasts two or three seasons is considered almost a priceless heirloom.

The boy who used to sneak off behind the barn to smoke corn-cobs has a flapper daughter who has to watch him carefully lest he sneak her monogrammed cigarettes.

It is wonderful, when a man is feeling a trifle worn and passed, a bright fresh little nosegay in his coat-lapel can nip him up, make him feel like a fascinating devil of a fellow again.

Returning some men is like trying to make an impression on a yellow—so soon as you restrict them in one place, out they go to another. Other men are built morally like the Tower of Babel—a waste of time trying to straighten them up.

Sometimes, many a girl who can run a 12-cylinder touring car with the strength or the technique to run a one-cylinder dish-mop. (Copyright, 1926.)

RECIPES FROM "The Old Virginia Cook Book"

CORN SOUFFLE

Take 1 cup of milk to 1 can of corn. (If corn is not large and tender put in a meat chopper.) Let summer stove for about 10 minutes. Then stir in salt and pepper to taste. Add 1 teaspoonful of corn-starch mixed with a little cold milk. Let this cook for a few minutes. Then add the beaten white of 1 egg, and lastly add a little butter. Bake in a greased baking dish for 20 minutes. (Copyright, 1926.)

Some Odd Facts.

A scientist says that his experiments have convinced him that the world is shifting. This would mean that the North American continent is sinking and the South American continent is rising.

It is said that the King of England might tell him exactly what has happened at the out of reach of children's prying eyes. Common sense during the day.

A thermometer column has become separated from its bulb by cooling the thermometer in cracked ice.

A man has only one auto and many of them make a sweater to your problem.

If you have only one window which windows are closed that there are just as many windows as can be accounted for. Just as better ventilation comes down at the top of the fall is a good time to make these structural changes. (Copyright, 1926.)

Children's Bedtime Story

The Empty Egg Crate

Opportunity, you'll find, is very much a state of mind.

—Old Mother Nature.

WHAT Old Mother Nature means by that is that most of us have opportunities a large part of the time, and frequently do not see them at all. It is the one who acts quickly, both in seeing and doing, who makes the most of opportunity and practically always finds opportunity. It was doing just this that had brought Danny Meadow Mouse so far on his long journey. As you know, time and again he had been in a very tight place, but each time he had seen opportunity and had made the best of it.

Now Danny was on his way to market. He didn't know it, but he was in a bag of potatoes on a market truck. So, for the first time in his life, Danny was having an automobile ride. He had ridden in an airplane, and he had ridden in a motor boat, and now he was riding on a motor truck.

Danny wasn't enjoying that ride, because he didn't know where he was being carried to, and he wanted to go home. Then, too, those potatoes in that bag were not at all comfortable as a bed. However, they furnished something to live on, and that was something to be thankful for.

"I don't know what's happening to me," said Danny, "but I have been in awfully tight places before, and I guess everything will come out all right this time. I'm not going to worry until something more happens."

It was a long time before anything happened. You see, that market garden where Danny had crept into the bag of potatoes was many, many miles from the town where the market was. It was very early in the morning, just at daylight, that the big truck rolled into the marketplace and the men began to unload. Danny had a bad fright when his bag of potatoes was unloaded. But it didn't last long. Shortly afterward the bag was opened and Danny wasted no time. He jumped out so suddenly that he scared the man who had opened the bag.

So as he ran he used those sharp little eyes of his to the best advantage

Now it never is an easy matter to know just where to go in a strange place. This market was entirely strange, of course. Danny dodged in and out between the bags of potatoes and between the boxes of other vegetables and fruit, looking for a place where he could get out of sight and feel reasonably safe. He was the more anxious to find this because in his first jump out of that bag he had seen a cat, and he knew that that cat would be looking for him. At first he could find no place where he felt safe in staying. He knew he couldn't keep up dodging all day. So as he ran he used those sharp little eyes of his to the very best advantage. He was looking for opportunity and he didn't intend to miss it.

Presently he came to a sort of box. At least, he thought it was a box. There was a lot of stuff in it which looked as if he could hide under it. Danny didn't hesitate. He climbed into that box in a hurry and he had hardly gotten in when the cover was shut. But the one who shut it hadn't seen him climb in there. What he was in was an empty egg-crate. That is, it was empty of eggs. It had in it merely the cardboard divisions for holding the eggs.

For a long time Danny lay there and listened to strange sounds that frightened him. There was a great deal of noise all about him. But nothing happened to him. That crate wasn't touched. It was late in the day before any one paid any attention to that crate. Then Danny felt it being lifted.

The Man on the Sandbox

LINCOLN WAS RIGHT.
Reformers call on Manager Horsey to protest Volstead violation by new pitcher. News Item.

THE manager stood with a quizzical smile wreathing his pleasant face:
He arched a brow and was heard to speak to the gentlemen near first base.
They'd called on him to see if he knew that a pitcher of high esteem, Was wont to partake of his daily nip before he had joined the team.

Then the manager asked, in his kindly way, if aught of the gentlemen there, Had seen the act just spoken of, if not, did they think it fair To jeopardize the club's good name with reports of a sinister kind?

Then one spoke up and said he could name the brand if he had a mind.

Said the manager, then, "Don't tell me who dispenses this potent brew, But mark you well the kind it is and I'll send for a case or two.

You understand there are nine more men composing my pitching staff, And I'd like to have a quart for each and I'd give those Yanks the laugh."
